Big Country. Big Wonders Meet Another Octopus Real for Him. He's Dead "I'll Make You Love Me"

—By Arthur Brisbane—

NATURE AND PROVIDENCE made this country on a big scale. Some of the biggest things are still unknown to a majority of us. Pike's Peak, the Mississippi, Niagara Falls and the oil deposits we all know. But few know about the gigantic limestone caverns of Carlsbad in New Mexico. An invitation to see the caverns from President Paul Shoup of the Southern Pacific Railroad gives this information:

"You can put the National Capitol into the biggest cave, so far discovered, and then have a Zeppelin sail over it without touching the roof."

Get your new car, drive out to see that cave, see other wonders in New Mexico and drive on to see the Pacific Coast and see the biggest thing of all, the Pacific ocean.

A new "octopus" is coming. Messrs. Eaton, of the Republic Steel; Campbell, of the Youngstown Company, and Grace, of Bethlehem Steel, are in New York planning a two-billion-dollar steel merger.

Once upon a time that would have set all the muck rakers to raking violently. And the Supreme Court would have said: "You mustn't do it; you are growing too big."

But we have passed that stage, and have taken for our motto: "The bigger the better."

Many that read this call the unemployment problem "a passing thing," not too serious. It was quite serious for Harry Drucker, Hungarian shoemaker, who came to this country after the World War, found a job repairing shoes, then opened a little store and married. Twins were born, everything was promising.

Now the twins are near death in a hospital, where the father, who attempted to kill them, is dying. The mother is dead, killed by her husband. Hard times closed the store, work could not be found. He, his wife and the twins starved more or less for seven months, now it is over.

No "theory" about that.

Russia is modern. Gigantic agricultural machinery "combines" such as the American farmers have ever seen travel fifty or a hundred miles in a straight line across immense wheat fields. What the Russians do, is done on a gigantic scale. Now they are spending $45,000,000 on a powerful broadcasting wireless plan. They will broadcast their theories on government and the sins of "capitalism," and whether you like them or not, the theories will come rattling into your radio.

Making people listen, of course, will be another thing. But some will listen, especially in these times.

The effort of Stalin to make you like his theories reminds you of Frederick the Great's father, chasing little boys into a corner and beating them severely, saying, "I'll MAKE you love me."

Money is still lent in Wall Street "on call" at one per cent. Two years ago nobody would have dreamed of such cheap money.

A few years hence many will wonder why they did not take advantage of it.

Otto H. Kahn, who really understands finance, said last Wednesday:

"Two years from now looking back, you will not believe that it was really possible to buy the best securities at the ridiculous prices of today. Then it will be too late."

Once in London a man wagered that the public would not buy real gold sovereigns for sixpence each if they were offered at that price. He tried the experiment and the public refused to buy. America is doing that now.

There is a puzzle in Washington, entitled, "To Hear or Not to Hear the Wickersham Report."

Congress would like to know what Mr. Wickersham and his friends have to say about prohibition after such long sitting. When a hen has been on her nest for 21 days you expect to hear a chicken peep.

On the other hand, the interests that are our real government don't want an extra session of Congress. In their opinion the safest congressman is one at home, far from Washington.

They fear the Wickersham report, for it may stir up questions that will force an extra session.

What would you do in that puzzling affair?

The price of bar silver drops again. Even the very "best" financial minds, that worshipped the gold standard, as fire worshippers did the sun, begin to

FOLEY PROBES GILMAN CASE THREATS

Mrs. Curtis, Widow of Police Commissioner, to Testify; the Grand Jury Acts

"All the facts" in the case involving Mrs. Florence Sennott Gilman of Newton, known to police in the past as "Queen of Shoplifters," in connection with which death threats are said to have been received by investigating officers, will be given to the Suffolk County grand jury, Dist. Atty. William J. Foley said today.

Mrs. Edwin U. Curtis, widow of the man who was police commissioner at the time of the police strike in 1919, informed the district attorney by telephone from New York today that she would be on hand as a witness.

"The Grand Jury will receive the true facts in the Gilman case, death threats or no death threats to police officers working on the case," said Foley.

GRAND JURY TO ACT

"I am going through with this case to a finish. Every single bit of evidence against everybody connected with the case, will go to the grand jury for consideration. We will not be intimidated.

"I have not received official information that the police officers were threatened, but if such was the case the men likely tendered their reports to their superiors at police headquarters."

In lower court, Mrs. Curtis told of being seated in a taxicab when Mrs. Gilman stepped in and ordered the driver to take her away, insisting that he do so in spite of the fact that he already had a passenger.

PHONE CALLS TO POLICE

Special Officers Frederick Regan and James Crowley of the Back Bay division are the officers who are reported to have received numerous telephone calls from unidentified persons relative to the case.

Their superior, Capt. Jeremiah Mosher, today said the officers had not reported to him receiving threats of bodily harm. Asked if he believed they had received such threats, he replied in the negative. Asked if they reported the offer of bribes, he said:

"That's a question I do not care to answer at this time."

Last Sunday evening Capt. Mosher visited the Gilman home and found a party in progress, the guests at which caused him to make a report to Dist. Atty. Foley. As a result of the inquiry a grand juror resigned, although insisting he was not at the party.

Mrs. Gilman, who before her marriage served a term for shoplifting, was arrested last November on charges of conspiracy to steal, receiving stolen goods and larceny, and Miss Julia Riley of Brookline, and Mrs. Lillian Donovan of Brighton were held with her for the grand jury by Judge Adlow in Municipal Court.

WORLD JOINS IN SYMPATHY TO CURLEY

Many Messages of Regret Are Received From All Parts of the Globe

Messages of sympathy and condolence and flowers today continued to pour into the home of Mayor Curley as the grief-stricken family mourned the tragic passing of the mayor's eldest son, James M., Jr., whose sudden death at City Hospital, following an operation early yesterday, shocked the entire city.

From all parts of New England and the nation and even from Central and South America, and Europe came the expressions of grief and comfort to the afflicted family. Thousands of friends and acquaintances visited the Jamaicaway home

SECOND MAN GAVE KILLER WEAPON, HE SAYS

Louis Skolnick, 25, of Lorna st., Dorchester, was arrested today and held as an alleged accessory to the murder of Lilyan Franks of Malden by Abrsham Goldenberg, 22, of Lorne st.

Goldenberg, who calmly confessed shooting the girl, his sweetheart, to death last night at Franklin Field, was held without bail for the Grand Jury when arraigned today in Dorchester District Court.

Skolnick was arrested shortly afterward and is declared by the police to have admitted giving the murder gun to Goldenberg two weeks ago.

According to his questioners at headquarters, Skolnick said he found the gun three months ago and that when he gave it to Goldenberg it was found to be out of order.

"Goldenberg told me yesterday that he had it fixed and he told me to watch the papers for the shooting," the youth is alleged to have said.

SLAYER UNRUFFLED

Sitting in the prisoner's cage in Dorchester court, Goldenberg displayed no emotion over the slaying of the 22-year-old girl whose parents had objected to her keeping company with the youth.

Earlier in the day Goldenberg was attacked by the girl's father as the two men met in the corridor of police headquarters.

The father, Lazarus Franks of Eastern ave., Malden, strode forward and seized the youth by the coat collar. Goldenberg, coldly indifferent until that moment, paled and dozed. Police separated them.

Goldenberg had just confessed to shooting the girl to death last night at Franklin Field, and having been fingerprinted, was on his way to a cell to await arraignment in Dorchester district court.

NEWS OVER RADIO

After the slaying he took a taxicab to police headquarters and confessed. Shortly afterward the girl's father and mother, seated in the living room of their home, heard the fateful news over the radio.

"She told me our engagement was off. I couldn't bear to have her go on living unless I could be with her."

This was Goldenberg's explanation of his act, according to police. He was quite calm as he related his story after handing over a revolver, containing five exploded shells.

He insisted throughout several hours of questioning that he loved the girl deeply and had decided to kill her and take the consequences when he was sure he could not have her.

On the back Goldenberg had penciled:

CASWELL HELD IN CHECK CASE

Capt. Edward D. Caswell of Dorchester, widely known in State military circles, was held today in $1000 personal bail for the federal grand jury on the charge of forging and uttering a check.

Caswell recently resigned as officer in command of Co. H, 101st Inf., National Guard. It was brought out at the hearing that Capt. Caswell owes Yanes for $13.15.

It was learned that at the time of the transaction Yanes was indebted to an inner-company organization to the extent of $13.13.

There is no record of Capt. Caswell reimbursing the organization with the money after he is alleged to have forged and cashed the check, federal officers said.

ORDERS ARE UP 303,000 TONS

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corp. increased 303,963 tons in December to a total of 3,943,596 tons Dec. 31. In November an increase of 157,873 tons was reported.

The backlog as of Nov. 30 was 3,639,633 tons, on Oct. 31 unfilled orders aggregated 3,481,763 tons. On Sept. 30 the total unfilled tonnage was 3,424,233 tons, and Dec. 31, 1929, unfilled orders amounted to 4,417,193 tons. A better inquiry and the placing of large orders for the first quarter of the new year were held largely responsible for the showing.

HOOVER TO DEFY SENATE ON THREE POWER NOMINATIONS

NEW BATTLE LOOMS OVER OUSTER

Watson Keeps Solons in Session to Await Reply of President

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Hoover informed Senate leaders he expected to reply today to the resolution requesting return of three power commissioners' nominations.

Mr. Hoover also indicated quite clearly he did not intend to comply.

The commissioners are Chairman George Otis Smith of Maine, Marcel Garsaud of Louisiana and Claude L. Draper of Wyoming. They previously were confirmed by the Senate and have taken office.

Senator Watson, Republican leader, was prepared to keep the Senate in session today awaiting Mr. Hoover's reply, which is expected to be a signal for new battle between the President and the coalition of Senate Democrats and Republican indcpendents.

ASKS FOR OPINION

It was the first time in history the Senate has made such a request of the President after an appointee was sworn into office.

If the President defies the Senate he will provoke one of the strangest impasses in American history. It is barely possible the Senate may proceed, even without the papers, and reject the three appointees.

The government disbursing office then must decide if the commissioners may draw salaries. If he should refuse to pay them they will be automatically ousted. The Senate might even impeach them.

The President's defy will also bring the charge he is "friendly to the power trust," and approves the commissioners' order in dismissing Russell and King.

POWER IS ISSUE

He will furnish also an issue to the various groups opposing him on the water power issue—and he will raise a unique constitutional issue in refusing to cooperate with the Senate in its constitutional power of considering confirmations according to its own rules.

If the President returns the nominations he virtually abandons the three new commissioners to their fate at the hands of an unfriendly Senate. Some believe Garsaud and Draper can be confirmed again, but not even administration leaders deny Smith would be rejected.

Even with the President's support, many believe he cannot be confirmed again for any public office, rightly or wrongly. The Senate holds Smith responsible for the entire controversy.

MISS BREMNER AT CURLEY BIER

Stricken with sorrow, her eyes filled with tears and worn from a sleepless trip from Chicago, Miss Loretta Bremner, revealed today as the fiancee of James M. Curley, arrived at the Curley home in the Jamaicaway late today.

Miss Bremner came here from Chicago shortly before 3 o'clock and was rushed by automobile to the side of her late sweetheart.

As she entered the Curley home Miss Bremner was met by Mary Curley, sister of the dead youth.

The girls, school chums, fell into each others' arms as they burst in sobs.

The sudden death of Mayor Curley's eldest son yesterday terminated a romance that dated back to his first meeting with Miss Bremner when she was a college chum of his sister, Mary.

The girl had been visiting Miss Curley at her home on Jamaicaway for several days. Her parents are on their way from Chicago to join her. She had returned to Chicago shortly after the annual address of the mayor to the City Council on Monday.

They planned to be married next summer after his graduation from Harvard Law School. Announcement of their engagement was being withheld until spring and their plans were known only to a small circle of friends.

Miss Bremner and Miss Curley were classmates at the College of the Sacred Heart, Manhattanville, New York.

Miss Bremner is the daughter of John B. Bremner and Ellen P. Bremner. Her father is the head of the Bremner Brothers Biscuit Co. of Chicago, largest biscuit manufacturers in the West.

Friends of Accused Brothers Taken in Early Morning Raid on Apartment

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP)—Detectives said they captured two intimates of Leo V. Brothers and found "important evidence" in an early morning raid today on one of the apartments where Brothers, held secretly for the murder of Jake Lingle, once lived.

Charles F. Rathbun and Pat Rocha, special investigators, conducted the raid, taking their prisoners to a secret office to question them. They refused to reveal whom they had captured, but John A. Swanson, state's attorney, hinted the arrests were significant.

"At this time," he said, "it is inadvisable to reveal the names of the prisoners or the substance of the records seized. The men will be questioned and with information which we already possess and that which we expect to gain, important disclosures are imminent."

DEMPSEY PUNCH O. K.; FLOORS WRESTLER

Former Champ Drops Referee Role to Wallop an Angry Mat Star

Nearly 10,000 sports fans last night saw a flash of the old time Manassa Mauler as Dempsey, angered by a blow from a bulky wrestler in a match he was refereeing, lashed out a right that drove the offender rolling to the canvas. The victim was Billy Edwards, Kansas City heavyweight.

Stripped of his shirt and his silk undershirt torn by Edwards' pawing, Jack for the moment once more was the man who won the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

The roar of the crowd was like that of ever-viewing a million dollar "fight of the century."

Dempsey had been warned that other referees had had difficulties here.

"I don't want to hurt anybody," he replied, "but I'm not going to stand up in front of a crowd like this and let some fellow punch me around. I'll tap him back."

The wrestlers, Edwards and Jim O'Dowd, Chicago, had panted and heaved through two falls. Edwards tore a new shirt off the ex-champion's back as Dempsey broke their holds in the second fall. Edwards then tore Jack's silk undershirt and all but pulled it off.

Persons from every walk of life paid tribute to the brilliant youth upon whose promising career death had written a grim valedictory. From high officials down to the common men in the street, the heads of all were bowed in sorrow at the passing of the young man who had already evinced every indication of following in the footsteps of his distinguished father.

HEARST SENDS CONDOLENCES

Mayor Curley today received a message of condolence from William Randolph Hearst. The message, sent from San Simeon, Cal., read:

"Hon. James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston:

"My dear Mayor Curley:

"I am deeply grieved to hear of your great loss and wish to extend my heartfelt condolence. (Signed) "W. R. Hearst."

The morning mail brought hundreds of letters from sympathetic friends. Telegrams, arriving every few minutes made it necessary to arrange with the telegraph company to have deliveries made every two hours, rather than a continuous stream of messengers at the door.

The police detail was augmented around the Curley home today, with a detail of four men on duty there now.

The family breakfasted early and shortly after 9 o'clock the mayor began greeting his callers.

HUNDREDS OF MESSAGES

He is feeling better today. The first shock of his son's death has passed and he is in full control of himself today, although feeling very low.

A corps of secretaries under the direction of Stanwood White, are opening the hundreds of letters and telegrams at the Curley home.

The city's distinguished Tercentenary guest, Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, England, sent a radiogram expressing the sorrow of himself and the town government in the mayor's bereavement.

Messages were received today from Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, commandant of the First Naval District; Bishop Lawrence, former head of the Episcopal Diocese of Boston; Civil Service Commissioner Elliot H. Goodwin, De-Witt Clinton Wolff, secretary to Gov. Ely; Rev. D. S. Klugh, D. D., of People's Baptist Church, Roxbury; Rev. F. L. Streeter of First M. E. Church, South Braintree; Rev. Michael J. Scanlan of St. Rose's Church, Chelsea; John B. Also from Mayor Burns, of Troy, N. Y., W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Supreme Director John E. Swift of the Knights of Columbus, Mayor Richard M. Russell of Cambridge, Mayor Michael A. Landers of Lawrence, A. Lincoln Filene, Warren L. Bishop, Henry Hornhover, Commissioner Hultman, Superintendent Crowley, students of Boston College and the Canterbury school, New Milford, Ct., the mayors of cities in the Greater Boston area and a host of others.

BEAUTIFUL FLORAL TRIBUTES

Edward A. McLaughlin, Jr., president of the alumni association, will be unable to attend the services, due to illness.

The mayor and his children remained up until a late hour last night meeting the thousands who made brief visits to the home which is plunged in mourning for a second time within the short space of a year.

It was just seven months ago today, on June 10, that Mrs. Curley passed away after a long illness.

The Rt. Rev Mgr. Richard J. Haberlin, vicar-general of the archdiocese, remained with the family all yesterday and offered them consolation. Both the mayor and his daughter, Mary, although bordering on collapse, bore up under the shock.

Many beautiful floral tributes have been sent to the mayor's home. They have been arranged about the casket in the same room from which his mother was buried. It is said the funeral plans will be completed today. The casket will leave the house at 8:30 a. m. Monday, and a solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross at 10 o'clock. He will be buried in the family lot at Old Calvary Cemetery beside his mother.

City Hall will be closed from 10 a. m. until noon Monday during the funeral. It was announced today by City Councillor Joseph McGrath, acting mayor.

Girl Slayer's Friend Held for Giving Him Death Gun

MET AT REVERE

He told police he met the girl at Revere Beach last summer and became engaged after a short acquaintance. All went well, he said, until the girl's family opposed him and said the romance must come to an end.

They continued to meet secretly, however, until the girl's parents learned of the fact and demanded that the engagement be broken.

The girl's father and brother, Samuel, admitted today that they had intervened to stop the romance. They said young Goldenberg was "insulting, unmanly and showed no great desire to work." Friends of the dead girl said they thought she was very much in love with the youth.

Last night, Goldenberg said, the farewell meeting was arranged. He told police he met Miss Franks at Blue Hill ave. and Angell st., Mattapan, and walked toward Franklin Field with her. At the time they met, the girl declared the engagement was at an end. He persuaded the girl to go to Franklin Field under the pretext that a friend was there with a gun. They would "talk things over," he said.

FIRED FOUR SHOTS

When they arrived at a deserted spot they stopped, Goldenberg said, and he drew the revolver and fired point blank. The bullet struck the girl in the neck and she fell to the ground unconscious. He then fired three shots into her prostrate body, he said.

He walked from the scene and, taking a taxi, rode to police headquarters, where he surrendered and told his strange story. He led a detail of police to where the bullet-riddled body of the girl was lying. He then was taken back to headquarters.

Long questioning by detectives and Police Commr. Hultman, who hurried to headquarters and took charge of the case, failed to break down the youth's story.

The Franks girl was employed as buyer in a Malden jewelry store. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus Franks. In addition to her parents, she is survived by a brother, Samuel. Goldenberg has three brothers and one sister.

Destroying the value of silver has destroyed the buying power of 800,000,000 people, half the population of the globe, including six in China and India.

When you impoverish 800,000,000 of your customers, you do not help business.

Sixty thousand cattle are slowly crossing the Australian continent. Once in six years heavy rains fall in the interior. Water holes are filled, the ground is covered with grass, as is the Mojave desert in California, when rain falls there.

This is a rainy year and experienced white herdsmen, with aboriginal blacks as "fielders," are slowly driving the great herds south from northern Australia.

Such a trip usually takes about two years and the "trek" is more merciful than in the old nomadic days.

Tartars drove their cattle from one pasture to another and on the way cut meat from living animals, ate what they wanted, and drove them on as long as they could go. There is improvement.

ADMINISTRATION LEADERS WILL FORCE ACTION ON DROUTH BILL

HOUSE MOVE WILL BREAK DEADLOCK

Measure to Be Given Right of Way by Adoption of Special Rule

Washington, Jan. 10—Administration leaders in the House decided today to force the drouth relief appropriation bill to conference with the Senate under a special rule and thus speed enactment.

The decision was reached at a meeting in the office of Speaker Longworth.

Chairman Wood of the House appropriations committee, advised the unofficial steering committee that if he failed to obtain unanimous consent today to send the measure to conference he would ask it be given a special legislative status.

TO HAVE RIGHT OF WAY

Chairman Snell said he would call the House rules committee together Monday and order out a rule to give the measure right of way.

The agreement promised a break in the several days' dealock which has held the $60,000,000 loan measure in the House after the Senate audition of $15,000,000 for food loans. The appropriation committee chairman had tried daily for several days to obtain unanimous consent to send the bill to conference. Representative LaGuardia, Republican, New York, objected. Wood had insisted before today that he would not consent to the seeking of a special rule for consideration.

REDS ARE BLAMED.

In the House it met an equally determined counter-attack, led by Chairman Wood of the Appropriations Committee, who claimed Communists and anarchists, "human vultures," were responsible for the loan agitation and had "staged" disturbances.

Wood's charges of Communist interference were belittled by the food loan supporters, who argued most of those involved in disturbances over food demands "never heard of Communism."

Red Cross to Ask for $10,000,000 for Relief

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Chairman Payne of the American Red Cross recommended to President Hoover today that an appeal be made for $10,000,000 for the relief of drouth sufferers.

After a conference with the President, Payne said the rapidly increasing demands would make the appeal necessary. The exact date on which the appeal would be made has not been decided.

During the last 10 days, demands on the Red Cross through its local chapters in the affected states have been increasing rapidly. Among the heavy items have been requests for food, for live stock, requests which the Red Cross has granted.

A total of 21 states are now requesting aid. Much of the help from live stock has been granted in Arkansas and Kentucky.

Federal Probe in Air Deaths of 3

Miami, Fla., Jan. 10 (AP)—The crash of a departing airplane, fatal to three occupants, was being investigated by Department of Commerce and air meet officials today as the all-American aircraft competition whirled into its third day. The dead, none of whom had participated in the air meet, were Lieut. James Riddle, 23, St. Petersburg and Chicago; Rob C. Smalley, 34, Chicago, vice-president and general manager of the Sinsonian-Illinois Company, and Dr. Harry A. Lare, Chicago.

Mary Carr Believes Dead Man Is Father

Marion, Ill., Jan. 10—Mary Carr of Hollywood, moving picture actress, notified authorities at Carterville today that Thomas Kennevan, 52, who died here December 17 and whose body has been unclaimed, may have been her father. Kennevan visited Carterville twice yearly and was known as a man of mystery, sometimes using the name of Kirk and sometimes Kenhu.

Chinese Speculators Steady Silver Price

Shanghai, Jan. 10 (AP)—The price of silver steadied slightly here this morning as the result of profit-taking by speculators. Financial circles anticipated even further declines from yesterday's 22.12 cents gold for the Mexican dollar.

Rich Bride Is "Lady Bountiful" to Bowery

New York, Jan. 10—A wealthy bride is acting as Lady Bountiful on the Bowery. Mrs. Irving T. Bush, the former Marian Spore, has been standing outdoors for hours handing out meal tickets and clothing. Her husband at times has assisted with coat off and sleeves rolled up.

Debutantes on Junior League Rolls Urged to Accept Challenge of Modern Social Work

MISS ILSLEY MISS DEWSON MISS DEXTER

GREATER BOSTON DEBUTANTES who were elected to provisional memberships in the Junior League listened to an address by Mrs. Eva Whiting White, president of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, concerning social problems. The session was held at the League headquarters on Marlborough st., yesterday. In describing relief, health and character building, Mrs. White urged the debutantes to accept the challenge to society to aid in working out measures that will lead to near stabilization. Among those who gathered at the session yesterday were, Marion Dalton, Louise Sawyer, Constance Wentworth, Ellen Cushing, Adelaide Rice, Cary Page, Barbara Warner, Marjorie Ilsley, Eda E. Dewson and Martha Dexter. (Staff photos.)

WOMAN HELD IN MATE'S DEATH

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—Mrs. Rosina Volpi of Brooklyn was arrested today and charged with having hired two assassins for $500 to kill her husband Giovenni, who was shot to death Thursday night as he drove through Mamaroneck in an automobile.

Alphonse Corrato of New York and Joseph Cowercori of Brooklyn were arrested in the Mamaroneck railroad station a few minutes after a fusillade of shots Thursday night drew a crowd into a residential street where the body of Volpi, Manhattan restaurateur, was found.

Mrs. Volpi was placed under arrest after she had been questioned all night. A charge of first degree murder was placed against her. Police said she told them her husband had been cruel to her and went about with other women.

ITALIAN ARMADA PLANE SINKS

Natal, Brazil, Jan. 10 (INS)—Further disaster to one of the unlucky units of General Italo Balbo's formation-flying planes was reported today in a wireless message from Fernando Noronha, which said the 12th plane of the squadron crashed while trying to take off from there and sunk. The crew was rescued.

This was one of the two planes forced down by engine trouble off St. Peter's rocks Jan. 6, during the flight from Bolama, Portuguese East Africa, to Natal.

Ten of Balbo's planes made the crossing safely and landed at Natal. The 11th plane completed repairs at Fernando Noronha on Thursday and flew to Natal.

Balbo has fixed the time for his take-off for Bahia at 7:30 tomorrow morning. He plans to remain there three days and then continue on to Rio de Janeiro.

Today the Italian aviators participated in dedicating a monument to Carlo Del Prete, noted Italian aviator who flew with Capt. Arturo Ferrarin from Rome to Rio de Janeiro in 1926.

Relief Aide Here

NYE SEEKS TO OUST DAVIS

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Pennsylvania's Senate seat, now held by Jas.es J. Davis and lost vacant while the conflict over William S. Vare raged, again is threatened.

Because expenditures of the Republican ticket on which Davis was elected reached a sum placed by Chairman Nye of the campaign funds investigating committee at about $1,200 000. the North Dakota senator has announced he will introduce a resolution to unseat the former Labor Secretary.

His action, Nye said yesterday, probably will come in a little more than a week, when the committee completes its report on the Pennsylvania investigation and after other pressing business is disposed of.

HOOVER RELIEF AIDE IN BOSTON

Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, vice-chairman of the President's committee for employment and head of the women's division of employment and relief work arrived in Boston today to investigate conditions in this state.

Shortly after arrival she visited the headquarters of the Massachusetts Welfare Chest in the John Hancock building, St. James st, where she spoke briefly to the members of that organization.

Dr. Gilbreth stated "she had heard of the splendid work of the Welfare Chest' and was very much interested in it, and anxious to pay the members in charge a visit."

She was greeted at the station by Mrs Nathaniel Thayer, chairman of the women's sub-committee of the Massachusetts emergency committee on unemployment. She will remain in Boston for several days.

Radio Burglar Gets Ten-Year Sentence

Providence, Jan. 10 (INS)—His bravado gone, Frederick A. Dion, 20, of this city, so-called "radio burglar" whom police believe responsible for 100 or more breaks here, today heard Judge Charles A. Walsh of Superior Court sentence him to 10 years in State prison for breaking and entering.

Dion gained the name of "radio burglar" by his methods of entering houses and ransacking the bedrooms while the families were listening to the radio. He must face other charges when he is released from prison.

Reds Seize Sleeping Quarters of Jobless

Youngstown, O., Jan. 10 (AP)—Admitted Communists last night seized control of "Friendly Inn," new sleeping quarters for unemployed—but this morning a former U. S. marine was standing guard. Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan and Police Chief Paul Lynden, called to the scene, said the Salvation Army would run the place, or it would be closed. The mayor finally put in charge of N. E. Wilson, veteran of the Argonne.

Anita De Braganza Inherits $1,238,612

TEN BROADWAY SHOWS CLOSE

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Ten of forty current Broadway stage productions will end their runs tonight. It is the biggest group of simultaneous closings in some seasons.

Several of the productions—notably "Lysistrata," revival of Aristophanes' old farce—have enjoyed long runs, but most of the closings are productions which failed.

Among the engagements which end is that of "Smiles," Ziegfeld musical comedy starring Marilyn Miller and Fred and Adele Astaire, which opened eight weeks ago.

Earth's 'Heart Beats' Seen as Cause of 'Face' Changes

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service Science Editor.

New York, Jan. 10—The earth beats or pulsates like a living heart.

These pulsations might be the decisive cause of the formation and shifting of mountains, continents and ocean beds. In these processes of the changing of the face of the earth, volcanic and earthquake disturbances arise.

Thus the study of the pulsations of the earth, related with astronomical facts like the changes in the earth's rotation and its electrical charge, enables science to foresee periods of geological disturbances in relation to astronomy and electro-magnetism.

BOSTON MAN TO WED STAR

Marion Miller, former Ziegfeld Follies show girl, and Frederic A. York, jr., son of the York Lumber Co. president of Dorchester, will be married in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Fifth ave., New York, today. Many Boston friends of Mr. York left here last night to attend the wedding.

Miss Miller, who has recently appeared here in "New Moon," "Rosalia," "Strike Up the Band," and many other productions, has been living at 3837 Wilton ave., Chicago, and has for some time been featured in radio broadcasts from that city.

Mr. York, the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. York of 23 Percival st., Dorchester, is a graduate of Holy Cross, class of 1921, a member of Pere Marquette, Bishop Cheverus assembly and fourth degree Knights of Columbus. He is a member of the South Boston yacht club.

William J. Bulmon of Dorchester will be the best man. Miss Alice York, sister of the groom, will be maid of honor. After a wedding trip, the couple will make their home in this city, where York is connected in business with his father in the York Lumber Co.

Forgery Suspect Held in $15,000 Bail

Fitchburg, Jan. 10 (AP)—Walter Meyers, alias Williams, of New York, captured here yesterday by a bank teller after an exciting chase, was arraigned today on forgery charges. He waived examination and was held for the grand jury in $15,000 bail.

Meyers fled from the Safety Fund National Bank after William S. Young, a teller, became suspicious of a check he offered. Investigation revealed Meyers was wanted in many cities.

Insurance Fire Laid to 3 Losing Jobs

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—A $1000 fire insurance policy looked big to 18-year-old Harry Hirschberg after he, his father and his 16-year-old brother lost their jobs several weeks ago.

After firemen had quenched two burning mattresses in the Hirschberg apartment—on the fourth floor of a 20-family tenement—Harry, Fire Marshal Brophy said, told of setting them afire.

Three Men May Die From 25-Foot Fall

Providence, Jan. 10 (INS)—Three men were perhaps fatally injured today when they fell 25 feet to the ground while dismantling the old court house here. The plank on which they had been working slipped from some unknown reason. They were Leo Spiles, a foreman, and James Matthews and William Jones the latter two colored.

Pilot and Mechanic Killed in Air Crash

Brussels, Jan. 10 (AP)—A pilot and mechanic, the only occupants of the night air mail plane from Brussels to Croydon, were killed when the plane crashed in a fog at midnight at Melle.

Ziegfeld Star to Wed

MARION MILLER, former Ziegfeld Follies girl, of Chicago, will become the bride today at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, of Frederic A. York, Jr., of Dorchester.

CUBA LETS ONLY 3 PAPERS PRINT

Havana, Jan. 10 (AP)—Only three Havana newspapers appeared today—the Herald de Cuba, Government organ, and the English language papers, the Havana Post and Havana Telegram.

All other papers, among them El Mundo, El Pais, Diario de La Marina, Information, and the Havana American were suspended late yesterday by President Machado in a decree charging "exaggerated and distorted" accounts of recent disorders.

In addition to the papers, the periodicals Karikato, Carteles, La Semana and Bohemia all were ordered to cease publication. The Havana American was the only English language paper suspended. Its editorials recently had severely criticized the President.

El Mundo, El Pais and De La Marina are among the most important papers in the Republic.

DEPORTATION OF REDS URGED

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Deportation of alien communists is to be recommended to Congress by the Fish investigating committee, Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., chairman of the committee, made this announcement at a mass meeting to combat communism at Carnegie Hall last night. Representatives of nearly 70 civic, patriotic, labor and other societies attended under a heavy police guard.

Resolutions urged:

1. Re-establishment of a bureau of investigation in the Department of Justice to shadow communist and kindred organizations.
2. Levying of an embargo against Soviet exports.
3. Exclusion of the communist and the workers' party from the ballot.

Fish said Communism was a menace to the nation and should be driven from our shores.

He advocated the abolition of child labor, a 44-hour working week, federal old-age pensions, unemployment insurance, and longer summer vacations as means by which capitalism might "clean its augean stables."

305,000 CLAIM POST WAR AID

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—The first six months in which veterans could claim allowances for post-war disabilities under new legislation saw 305,890 former soldiers file applications.

Records of the veterans' administration, tabulated as of Jan. 1, were made public today, showing 129,000 of the claims had been passed upon and 52 per cent granted.

On that percentage, those likely to be given the allowance would number 160,000 and would receive approximately $40,000,000 annually, at the rate of $20 per month. The 72,433 claims granted to date totaled $18,283,920.

Disability compensation payments for veterans injured while under arms or in the service totaled approximately $1,700,000 on Nov. 30. Massachusetts had 7961 in this class.

STATES APPLY FOR ROAD FUND

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Bureau of Public Roads reported today that states rapidly are availing themselves of the $80,000,000 emergency apropriation for highway construction.

The 11 district offices of the bureau are examining proposals for road construction which will involve use of the loan fund.

Projects already recommended for approval by the regional offices are being considered here. The first came from Delaware one week after the emergency legislation was enacted. Construction programs also have been proposed by Florida, Maryland and Connecticut.

Fashionable Group at Benefit

Vincent Memorial Hospital Supper Dance Is Held at the Somerset

THE VINCENT MEMORIAL HOSPITAL supper dance at the Hotel Somerset last evening was one of the smartest and merriest parties of the social season. The Louis XIV ballroom was the setting and the young married set gathered about small tables, dancing and supping at intervals. Mrs. Augustus Thorndike, Jr., was very beautiful and Junoesque in coral satin with silver lace capelet and was among the many who gave a dinner party preceding the affair.

MRS. VALENTINE HOLLINGSWORTH, one of the committee, was attractive in plum chiffon, and Mrs. John E. Thayer, Jr., always the well-poised Boston lady, was attired in flowered taffeta, very becoming. Mrs. Edward Warren slipped through the crowd in cerise crepe, cleverly cut, and Mrs. Robert Almy was equally noticeable in turquoise satin. Petite Mrs. George Abbott was dainty in apricot tulle and Mrs. David Arnold was in blue-green taffeta.

IVORY SHADED TO BEIGE was popular and Miss Mary Hammond was in ivory satin trimmed with mink, Mrs. Richard Harte was in white and silver with sable scarf, Mrs. John E. Taulmin in ivory satin, Mrs. William A. Barron wore a white fringed gown, Mrs. Henry P. Kidder was stunning in white, Mrs. Gordon Abbott wore a clever arrangement of white lined with cerise and matching sandals. Mrs. Geloton King was charming in mauve lace, and Miss Susan Hammond was demure in red taffeta.

THERE WERE SEVERAL engaged couples present, among them Miss Ruth Cheney and Dr. Reynolds, Mrs. Alfred McIntyre wore pale pink, Mrs. Gorham Hubbard, cerise, and Mrs. Lyon Weyburn, green — they made a lovely picture. Mrs. Howland Seabury was among the group who came from the North Shore, and was striking in ivory crepe touched with red velvet. Mrs. Neil Rice was so genial and aristocratic in black lace with ermine scarf. Mrs. Sturgis, Jr., in blue satin, and Mrs. Alvin Sortwell in gray blue crepe. Louise Fessenden looked unusually lovely in light blue, and Mrs. Robert Hewitt, Jr., was stunning in red lace. Among the flowered taffetas was Mrs. Stevens Rackemann and Mrs. Philip Theopold was a symphony in black and white.

MODEL from PETER L. FLYNN CO.

ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news every WLEX every Tuesday and Thursday at 10:30 a. m.

TAKING A TIP from nature, fashion notes the cheery effect the first robin redbreast makes against the last spring snow and decides upon bright coats for the season. Besides the warm reds that were seen in gay profusion among smart Christmas shoppers, there are coats of Kelly green, of yellow tones, tangerine; bright blues and other effective variants of this new theme.

* * *

WARMLY FURRED, or, as is the case with some of the brightest tweeds, without fur, the bright coat is an addition to the midseason wardrobe that is drooping under a pall of black and dark colors.

* * *

THE BRIGHT coat is an especial boon to the business woman who prefers dark frocks and suits for the office or shop, for the dark dress is an excellent foil for the colorful coat.

* * *

FUR TRIMMING is an item to watch carefully in making the purchase of a gay coat, for the fur that harmonizes with the color of the coat adds subtly to the smartness and charm of the ensemble. Beaver is very smart with colors that have a yellow or tawny cast. The coat of straight slim lines combines the color with the soft brown fur.

* * *

* * *

AN EXTRA coat is never amiss, whether you are going to be at school or at home after the holidays are over. And the fur-trimmed cloth coat is something which no wardrobe can afford to omit.

* * *

THE YOUTHFUL coat pictured is in "Fern-cliff" green chonga cloth, stitched belt of the material caught with green buckle. The furred cuffs set on above the sleeve edge, and the shawl collar, are of fox in soft gray. The little hat is of green ribbon, draped to wide side sections, and topped with two matching feather pom poms.

* * *

TWEEDS MAY be a bit more varied in their choice of fur because of their ability to tone with many colors.

* * *

MAGGY ROUFF has designed a perfect coat for youthful wearers. She employs the popular belted, rather straightline silhouette, but adds an original twist to the collar. Fashioned of a dark brown pebbly wool, it uses two long fur banded scarfs as collaring. The fur banding is brown beaver lapin.

Bay State Clubwomen to Attend Conference

By NANCY BREWSTER

With outstanding speakers on the unemployment problem, the White House Conference on child health and protection and inter-American relationships, the annual mid-winter meeting of the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which meets in Washington at the headquarters Jan. 14 to 17, promises to be a conference of more than passing interest.

Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, journeys to Washington tomorrow to be on hand at the opening of the session. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Azel A. Packard, director for Massachusetts in the General Federation; Mrs. Fred L. Pigeon, member of the General Federation board of education and of the Boston school committee; Dr. Anna C. Palmer, of the public welfare department of the General Federation; Mrs. May Bliss Dickinson Kimball, specialist in mothercraft, and Mrs. Frank H. Stewart, vice-chairman of the division of art in the General Federation.

MRS. POOLE HEADS PARTY

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, first vice-president of the General Federation and this State's unanimous choice for presidency of the greatest body of organized women in the world, will meet the party in Washington.

Preceding the regular sessions, which are to be presided over by the president, Mrs. John F. Sippel, a pilgrimage will be made next Tuesday morning to the penal institutions of the District of Columbia at the invitation of the institutional superintendent, H. E. Barnard.

At the reception, to be given Tuesday evening at headquarters, the clubwomen will have an opportunity to receive members of Congress from their states and their wives. This is the notable social event of the week, as it brings together the leaders in the life and thought of the club movement of the country and the members of the official and social life of the nation's capital.

NOTABLE SPEAKERS

Among the notable speakers who will address the board are the ambassador from Peru, Senor Manuel Freyre; Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, of President Hoover's Emergency Committee; and Dr. James S. Plant, vice-chairman of the committee on delinquency, White House Conference on Child Health Protection.

The members of the board are to be received by President and Mrs. Hoover and there will be a pilgrimage to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Federation Leader Heads Mrs. Poole Campaign Board

Bay State clubwomen will be delighted to hear that their state president, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, has been appointed chairman of the campaign committee for the candidacy of Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Brockton for president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Election comes at the next biennial and should Mrs. Poole be chosen she will serve from 1932 to 1934.

Judge Schofield to Be Honor Guest of Harwich Women

Judge Emma Fall Schofield, one of the two women in Massachusetts to be appointed special justices by Governor Allen, will be the principal speaker at the Harwich Woman's Club next Tuesday, at 2:30 p. m., in the Community Room. "Current Legislation" is to be the recently appointed justice's subject.

It is to be a legislative day for club members, presidents and vice-presidents of the clubs in the district, and the program offered to them has been arranged by the club's legislative chairman, Mrs. Arthur M. Nichols. A social hour will bring the afternoon session to a close.

Mrs. Frank Bennett Heads Washington Commission Here

A committee has been formed to forward the plans of the George Washington bicentennial commission with Mrs. Frank P. Bennett, Jr., first vice-president of the State Federation appointed by the state president, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader.

Mrs. Bennett will have as her assistants Mrs. Frederick S. Fogg, chairman of the division of education; Miss Phoebe Lee Hosmer, chairman of the division of literature and drama, and Mrs. Robert Parmenter, chairman of the division of conservation of natural resources.

State Federation Forms New Board to Aid Club Women

Something new has been evolved in club history—the formation of a program service committee, of which Mrs. John H. Kimball, third vice-president of the State Federation has been appointed chairman. This was formed to benefit those who must arrange programs but who don't know where to begin.

Assisted by Miss Ethel M. Eaton, secretary at the State Federation headquarters, 687 Boylston st., Mrs. Kimball is ready to help all program chairmen.

New Building Proposed

END OF SLUMP NEAR, AUTO HEAD SAYS

"The automobile industry will lead the way out of the present depression and Oakland-Pontiac will lead the automobile industry," W. A. Blees, vice-president in charge of sales of the Oakland Motor Car Co., told 500 dealers and bankers at a banquet at the Hotel Statler last night.

The banquet brought to an end the first of a series of 23 sales conventions which the Oakland company is holding throughout the country. Vice-President Blees and his staff will journey to Buffalo today, where they will conduct a similar sales demonstration.

Blees, who was the principal speaker, said the company's new models have created a sensation wherever shown. He pointed out the success of the Oakland-Pontiac display at the New York motor show recently.

WEATHERED SLUMP

In stressing the position of Oakland-Pontiac as a member of the General Motors family as an important point in the sales program, Blees said:

"During the months of depression, General Motors was one of the few corporations in the industry which continued to make money. Having come through the ordeal with flying colors, General Motors is in a position to profit by the recovery which is bound to come in a few months. My confidence is genuine and not mere optimistic talk."

Blees advised the dealers to use the G. M. A. C. installment plan, recommending it as the one which gives the most protection to manufacturer, dealer and customer. In this he was seconded by N. C. Dessendorf, representing the New York G. M. A. C. office.

F. C. Sibley, Boston zone manager, announced that the company sold almost 6 per cent of its price class in Boston last year.

FINANCE MEN ATTEND

Dealers and finance men from all over New England were here for the sales convention and banquet. Among the Oakland-Pontiac officials at the speakers' table were J. S. O'Rourke, parts and service manager; W. S. Huber, sales promotion manager; S. Olson, motor accounting manager; H. H. Goodrich, sales accounting department; D. U. Bathrick, Eastern sales manager, and A. C. Olsen, dealing accounting manager.

Other General Motors officials at the table were William Sheard, G. M. A. C. Boston branch manager; F. Hackett, Portland Chevrolet zone manager; J. Martin, G. M. A. C. New Haven branch manager; E. V. Hering, General Motors trucks zone manager; Edward Howard, G. M. A. C. Portland branch manager; H. J. Walsh, Boston Chevrolet zone manager; N. T. Mation, New Haven zone manager General Motors radio organization; J. Hughes, G. M. A. C. Massachusetts branch manager, and W. J. Grayson, Chevrolet motor trucks sales manager.

Forty salesmen, who averaged a car a week during the past year were presented in positions of honor around the speakers' table.

Formation of a new honor group this year was announced by Vice-President Blees with election based on all-around ability rather than only on cars sold. Twelve representatives of this new group will be called to Detroit next year. They will act as a council with unlimited powers of discussion to offer suggestions for the improvement of Oakland-Pontiac methods.

Right-of-Way to Pond Is Ordered

Public necessity and convenience require the establishment of a right of way to Dunham Pond in South Carver from Tremont st., in that town, according to a special report filed today with the clerk of the House of Representatives by the State Board of Public Works. The report also includes a bill carrying out this recommendation, suggesting a road 100 feet wide with acquirement of additional land if necessary.

Saugus Man Missing

Chelsea police have been asked to look for Samuel Shaffette, of Saugus, who has not been seen since he left the home of his father in Chelsea last Wednesday about noon. He had in his pockets between $150 and $200.

BRITISH MILLS LOCK OUT 25000

Burnley, Eng., Jan. 10 (AP)—Twenty-five thousand weavers in the cotton textile industry were locked out today by 90 per cent of the mill owners, carrying out the owners' threat that the mills would be closed unless 5000 men, who struck earlier in the week, returned to their jobs by today.

The lockout was an organized action by employers. The dispute arose from the weavers' refusal to accept the mill owners' demand that each man now operating four looms take over four more. Wages would be increased about $10 a week, but the number of workers would be reduced.

$438,000 for Camp Devens Is Opposed

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Rogers bill to authorize $438,500 of construction at Camp Devens, Mass., was opposed today by the War Department. Acting Secretary Payne wrote the House Military Committee the department can approve only $64,000 for Camp Devens, or $16,000 for non-commissioned officers' quarters; $45,000 for four bachelor officers' quarters, and $3000 for a magazine.

1930 Recorded as Third Driest Year

Amherst, Jan. 10 (AP)—The year of 1930 was one of much sunshine and little rain, the "weather man" at Massachusetts Agricultural College announced today.

The total precipitation for the year was 32.83 inches, as compared with an average of 34.40. It was the third driest year on record. During the year there were 163 clear days as compared with an average of 109.

300 to Return to Work

Independence, Kas., Jan. 10 (INS)—Three hundred men will return to work January 19 at the Universal Atlas Cement plant here, it was announced today. Operations were suspended three weeks ago.

Boston to Have Mental Gym for Modern Ideas Only

Scientists engaged in experiments to rejuvenate the body may be interested to learn of a new method being tried out in Boston by a group of artists, writers, actors and musicians.

This method starts with the rejuvenation of the mind through a modern forum conducted at 697 Boylston st. on Sunday evenings at 8 o'clock. Eugene Keenan is chairman.

Only modern ideas may be discussed in this forum, to which the college element flocks with the aesthetics, bent on self expression.

The only requirement for admission is to have modern ideas, it was announced today.

The topic to be discussed at the meeting of this group next Sunday is "Music and Its Relationship to Everyday Life," led by Minot Beal.

The modern trio, Jane Desmond, leader, will demonstrate how to compose music with color, transmitting sound waves into color waves.

JOB INSURANCE BILL STUDIED

Washington, Jan. 10 (INS)—A form of federal-state unemployment insurance, through an annual appropriation of $100,000,000, proposed in a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Wagner (D) of New York, was receiving consideration of relief advocates today.

Under the bill the federal government would contribute to each state co-operating in such insurance not more than one-third of the state fund.

The states would create insurance funds through appropriations, contributions from municipalities and by private contributions.

Liners Will Link Maine and France

Portland, Me., Jan. 10 (AP)—Direct steamship service linking Maine and France for the first time in the history of the state will be inaugurated in February by the American-France Line, Herbert W. Morrill, local agent, announced today. At present the line maintains regular service between New York and French ports.

ARMY FLIERS TO GUARD COAST

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Aerial defense of the coast line of the United States and its overseas possessions is now up to the army. The navy has agreed to turn the job over, lock, stock and barrel, ending a dispute between the two services that has involved several other government branches and some congressional debate.

In future the naval air force will be an arm of the fleet and nothing else. Such land stations as are maintained will serve as training stations and as ports, but will not be regarded as coast defenses.

Soon after taking office Secretary Adams asked the Attorney-General for an opinion as to just where army fliers left off defending the coast and where the navy should begin. Nothing came of it. Yesterday Admiral Pratt and Gen. MacArthur, executive heads of the two branches made it known they had got together and that the army would do the work.

Third Party to Be Debated by B. C.

Six Boston College debaters will discuss the third party move in politics Sunday night at the Common Cause Forum in Franklin Union Hall, Berkeley and Appleton sts.

Whether or not the Republicans and Democrats have outlived their usefulness and whether a third party should be formed is a question started recently when the "political pot pourri at Washington stirred up the idea.

The affirmative will be presented by Joseph C. Rogers, Edward J. Nowlan and John J. Wright and the negative by Peter C. Quinn, Vincent J. Makay and Jerome Doyle. David Goldstein, Catholic lecturer, will preside.

4 Bandits Get $22,000

Chicago, Jan. 10 (INS)—Four heavily armed bandits raided the State Bank of Franklin Park, a suburb, today, and stole $7000 in cash and $15,000 in bonds, after forcing five persons into a vault.

SULLIVAN TO GO BACK ON STAND ON MONDAY

Grilling of John F. Sullivan, star Government witness, will be resumed Monday at 9:30 in Suffolk Superior Court by Atty. Daniel J. Gallagher, counsel for Oliver B. Garrett, his wife and Lillian V. Hatch, all charged with conspiracy to extort money from Sullivan.

It is likely that Sullivan, former proprietor of the old Ritz Hotel on Columbus ave., will be a witness for several days more, as there will probably be re-direct examination by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle and then some more cross-examination.

Before the close yesterday Sullivan admitted having lied upon previous appearances as a witness in other cases, all related more or less to his business as a hotel man. A lively clash between Doyle and Gallagher marked the closing minutes. There was no session of the trial today.

PIPE SAVES 20 IN TUNNEL TRAP

San Francisco, Jan. 10 (AP)—Trapped 750 feet below ground by a cave-in they were working to prevent but saved from death by the quick wit of a fellow-laborer, 20 men awaited deliverance today from a tunnel of the Hetch Hetchy municipal water project.

Welby Morgan, 28, was the hero. With the first warning of falling rock, he took a 20-foot length of four-inch pipe and dropped it in what he thought would be the center of the cave-in. His guess was right. The pipe extended entirely through the 16 feet of debris and furnished air to his entrapped fellows.

GIRL FLIERS END RECORD HOP

Los Angeles, Jan. 10 (AP)—Bobbie Trout and Edna May Cooper ended today after having established a new women's endurance flight record of 122 hours 50 minutes.

The girls landed at 5:20 o'clock last evening because of a cracked cylinder in the motor of their plane, the Lady Rolph, named by Miss Trout and Elinor Smith of New York.

Neither of the flight came so suddenly that those on the ground did not realize it was over until the plane had coasted to a quick halt on the field and the fliers jumped out.

The first intimation they were having trouble came at noon, when tall or black smoke was noticed behind the plane as it circled the airport. The girls, however, admitted they discovered engine and motor failure 10 hours before the end.

Promoters of the flight said they ordered the girls to land because householders near the airport were objecting to their low flying.

5 Thieves Lashed Under Delaware Law

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 10 (AP)—Five men, convicted of larceny and serving terms in Newcastle county workhouse, were marched into the prison courtyard a few mornings ago and submitted to a punishment as old as the State of Delaware.

Stripped to their waists, they were tied to a whipping post and a prison officer with a cat-o-nine-tails carried out the sentence of the court. Two of them were given 20 lashes and the other three 10.

Girls With Bustles Messed Basketball

Kansas City, Jan. 10 (AP)—Dr. James A. Naismith, who invented basketball, back in '91, thus describes the early days of the game.

"When we finally evolved basketball we played it with peach baskets for goals. The girls played it in high-heeled shoes. They wore their bustles. It was a mess."

Herbert and Hoover Confer

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Senator Hebert, Republican, Rhode Island, conferred with President Hoover today. After the conference the senator said local appointments had been discussed.

LOUISE BURIED IN ROYAL TOMB OF BRITAIN

Windsor, England, Jan. 10 (AP)—Princess Louise was laid to rest today in the royal tomb under Albert Memorial Chapel in a ceremony containing a touch of the glitter she hated so much.

Among those present to do last honor to the departed daughter of the late King Edward and Queen Alexandra was a company of the military Knights of Windsor in brilliant scarlet and gold uniforms. The pallbearers were members of the 4th Dragoon Guards, of which the princess royal was colonel-in-chief.

Scottish pipers preceded the body into the chapel for the brief service conducted by the dean of Windsor, Dr. Albert Baillie.

Those present included King George, whose oldest sister she was. Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester and other members of the royal family.

Princess Louise died last Sunday. She was 83 years old. A few friends of the royal family also attended the service, among them Ramsay MacDonald, David Lloyd George, Dame Margaret Lloyd George, Lord Parmoor and the Marquess of Reading.

1100 JAILED IN POLE REVOLT

Warsaw, Jan. 9 (AP)—More than 1100 persons, including university students, high school pupils and priests, are held in Polish prisons as a consequence of revolutionary disorders in Eastern [illegible] last autumn.

Gen. Delician Skiabkowski, minister of interior, answering charges of Polish terrorism before the budget committee, reported that severe measures had been involved in the province, much to the government's regret.

The actions were taken after Ukrainian revolutionists had fired the property of Polish peasants, he said, and had terrorized the peaceful population.

Police and soldiers were sent into affected regions and suspected dwellings were searched, the military investigations removing thatched roofs and floors.

Chemistry Seen as Aid to Prosperity

New York, Jan. 10 (INS)—Chemical and other young industries will lead the return of prosperity in the United States, according to Arthur D. Little, chemist and inventor, of Cambridge, Mass., at Columbia University when he received the Perkin medal for "the most distinguished service to American applied chemistry."

Mr. Little predicted chemical agents replacing water in heating and power and said even new foods were in prospect.

Bandit Victim

WOMAN LOCKED UP BY THUG

A holdup man, wearing tinted glasses as a disguise, locked Mrs. Frances Boyd of 92 Winthrop st., Roxbury, in a closet in the rear room of the branch store of the Universal Dyers and Cleansers, at 229A Dudley st., Roxbury, last night, and stole $11 in bills from a desk.

Mrs. Boyd, a clerk in the store, was preparing to close for the day when the man entered, drew a nickel-plated pistol.

Menacingly he pointed the pistol and told her that, if she did not put her hands up, he would shoot her. Paralyzed with fright, she was unable to put up her hands and he, waving his weapon in the direction of the rear room, forced her to go into the room.

After he secured the money, he returned to the rear room and forced her into a closet, putting a "dead lock" on the door with a chair and a piece of board. He told her to stay there for five minutes or he would shoot her.

Ona Munson Seeks Mexican Divorce

Nogales, Ariz., Jan. 10 (AP)—Ona Munson, musical comedy and film actress, has a suit for divorce on file in the Mexican Civil Court in Nogales, Sonora, across the border. The suit charges her husband, Edward J. Bonzell, a New York dancing instructor, with extreme cruelty. The couple were married in San Francisco, July 16, 1926.

31,000 HELD IN NEW DRY DRIVE IN 6 MONTHS

Washington, Jan. 10 (INS)—Driving hard against big violators of the prohibition laws federal agents arrested 31,087 persons during the six months ending Dec. 31, Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, announced today.

Congestion of the federal courts with prohibition cases increased during the period. When the Department of Justice took over enforcement from the Treasury, July 1, there were pending 21,538 cases in the federal courts. On Dec. 31 pending cases numbered 22,574.

Seizures during the half year included 10,550 stills and distilleries, 807 beer fermenters, 3839 automobiles, 27 boats and launches, 4,007,673 gallons of beer and 711,094 gallons of spirits.

Of those arrested 23,304 were held for grand jury action. There were 20,521 pleas of guilty, 1576 jury trials and 3572 acquittals or dismissals during the period. The average jail sentence was 229 days and the average fine $145.46. Permanent injunctions granted totaled 2356.

DIXIE DIES HARD AT COPLEY

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

NOW WE KNOW what it is that keeps the good old chivalric South so positively solid —so surely Democratic. It's the dramatist. He simply will not let the warm-hearted old gentlemen of Dixie step out of their Civil War pantaloons. It came home to you in a flash at the Copley last night as Lawton Campbell's play, "Solid South," was making its first bid for chilly New England approval.

* * *

FROM THE START you had to deal with Major Bruce Follonsby, suh; a Southern gentleman who stood strictly on his rights as a defender of the faith so graciously surrendered some years before by Robert E. Lee. A Lee could surrender; Stonewall Jackson could die for his country — but a Follonsby never yielded an inch to any "dam Yank."

Nicholas Young

And into the charming Follonsby household came two men from Pittsburgh, father and son, to make love to the ladies and add deeper indignity to the tipsy old fire-eater, whose dwindling estate had become almost invisible. Although freely billed as farce comedy, "Solid South" really developed some remarkably choice satire on men and manners in the land of the boll weevil.

* * *

OF COURSE, somewhere in the South there may be living examples of this Maj. Follonsby —old fashioned, hair-trigger plantation owners whose ancestors trailed with Mosby and Forrest, and who are not quite sure now that the war is ended. But I suspect you would have to move deep into the backwoods to discover one. However, the character makes good drama and if you are in friendly mood, provides genuine entertainment. You can like the old rascal even if he earns your hearty disapproval.

* * *

THE BLUSTERING, tippling Follonsby you faced last night was done by Walter Abel, an excellent young actor, who must have had some grilling moments trying to dig under the surface of so rich and so seasoned a character. It was no job for a youngster, although Mr. Abel handled himself nicely at every turn. The most interesting of the night's portraits was contributed by Jessie Busley, who played elderly maiden sister to the grim Yankee hater.

* * *

AS THE NEWEST arrival to the new Copley company, Miss Busley brought all of the arts and graces that had seasons before endeared her to local playgoers. This time she became a sprightly spinster, quaint in her philosophies and strict in her code of honor. Nor did she care very much for the interloping gentleman from the North. For all she or her brother (the pompous major) cared, they might have been Union soldiers. And bad luck to them if they were!

* * *

AGED WINE IS EVER GOOD

When the Messrs Shubert present their operetta, "A Wonderful Night," at the Shubert, commencing next Thursday night, it will be the first time that the famous Johann Strauss' work, "Die Fledermaus," will have been done in English and in popular form here in Boston.

"Die Fledermaus" has been presented on numerous occasions by the Metropolitan and Chicago Grand Opera companies, and has been one of the most popular of the lighter operas abroad for the last 50 years. But it was not until Max Reinhardt, the German theatrical genius made a popular version of it a few years ago for the regular musical comedy stage that it attracted wide-spread theatrical attention.

MIRRORS OWN LOVE LIFE IN HIS DRAMA

Just how much of Turgenev's Pauline Viardot is woven into his play, "A Month in the Country," which the Theater Guild will present at the Tremont, for two weeks beginning Monday, is a subject of great interest to all admirers of this Russian author.

In Russia, it is customary to identify the lover, Rakitin, in the comedy as Turgenev, himself. When Stanislavsky of the Moscow Art Theater plays the Earl Larimore part, he actually makes himself up to look like the portraits of the playwright and novelist. The wife, played here by Nazimova, undoubtedly resembles Pauline Garcia Viardot, the Parisian opera singer, in whose home Turgenev lived for many years as an intimate of the family.

The life story of this lady finds her at the age of four in New York, where her sister, Marie Garcia, better known as Mme. Malibran, was making her debut as a singer under the management of her father, remembered as a pioneer in introducing Italian opera to America. Pauline is later referred to as the favorite pupil of Frz. Liszt, whose teaching enabled her, at the age of eight ... to make her debut in London as Desdemona in Rossini's "Otello."

But Paris is the real setting of her triumphs both on the operatic stage and in the drawing room. About here seem to have gathered the most distinguished representatives of the world of art and letters, but Turgenev is in the very center, either as an intimate friend of both Mme. Viardot and her husband, or, as some think, her lover. Both Turgenev and Louis Viardot died in 1883, but Pauline lived to the great age of 89.

Since these three figures of a celebrated "artistic triangle" in real life are the dominant characters of "A Month in the Country," the portrayal of Rakitin is plausibly thought to be a revelation of the role that Turgenev played in the Viardot household—that of a pathetically constant friend, resigned to a cherished love that was required only by momentary glances and words of hope.

He understands the wife almost as fully as does the author, with slightly cynical levity bowing to her emotional caprices and yet acknowledging her charm.

MAN WHO GETS THE LAUGHS TELLS SOME ON HIMSELF

By HARRY ROSENTHAL

My father, Joseph Rosenthal, a violinist with the Metropolitan Opera orchestra, taught me how to play the piano when I was a youngster, and saw to it that I practiced every day. When I was ten years old I was blowing a trumpet in a boys' band.

During the war I was bandmaster at Camp Devens. I also played a trumpet with Victor Herbert's organization, and played the piano with the Mercer Davis Orchestra at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia. Then I organized my own orchestra. The Shuberts took me to New York, and afterward I was engaged every season to play at the Bath and Tennis Club in Palm Beach. I still have my orchestra, which is a wow at private parties.

Harry Rosenthal

In England I am more widely known as a composer than as an orchestra leader, pianist or actor. In 1924, I composed the score of "Bamboola," "Sky High" and "Clo-Clo," the latter in collaboration with Franz Lehar.

So much for my musical background.

One day last spring, I was sitting in my penthouse atop the Warwick Hotel, when the 'phone rang and I heard Jesse Lasky calling me from California. He was urging me to come to the Coast to write scores for talking pictures. I promised to call him back the next day and let him know.

As soon as I rang off, the 'phone tinkled again and a voice said:

"This is Sam Harris speaking. I'm downstairs with a couple of guys who think they know you."

"Who are they?" I asked.

"Hing Lardner and George S. Kaufman."

I told Sam to bring them up. As soon as they entered the room, Sam handed me a script.

I jumped back, thinking it was a summons.

"What's this?" I asked.

"Harry, you're an actor," said Mr. Harris.

"If I'm an actor, you're an Eskimo."

That's the whole story of how I happened to be engaged to play Maxie Schwartz in "June Moon," now at the Wilbur. My previous stage experience consisted of a three-day engagement in Newark, with a singer named Margaret Young. At the end of the third day, she said to me:

"Harry, you're a pretty fair piano player, but a terrible actor. You'd better stick to your piano."

I hope she read the reviews of "June Moon."

DAD'S HATRED OF STAGE NO BAR TO SON

It wasn't an easy matter for Brock Pemberton, noted stage producer, to convince his austere relatives in Kansas that the theater provided a highly desirable atmosphere for a young man seeking a career.

The grandfather of Pemberton was the Rev. Thomas Murdock, a fire-and-brimstone circuit rider in Kansas, who was particularly bitter in his thoughts about the stage.

And here is grandson Brock, the producer of "Strictly Dishonorable," a comedy with a speakeasy flavor, reigning hit of two seasons on Broadway and current attraction at the Colonial, now in its fourth week.

Mr. Pemberton really started out to be a newspaper editor after being graduated from college. From a newspaper copy desk he drifted into the theater. And it has been only during the last few years that he has been able to convince his mother that he was not doing something very wrong in being associated with the theater.

"Strictly Dishonorable" has as its hero a speakeasy of the very wet forties in New York—but a most agreeable drinking establishment—to which comes an unworldly girl from Yokum, Mississippi; her opinionated suitor who attempts to set down the rules for both of them; a congenial judge who manages to get a trifle more than his share of alcoholic beverages, and a handsome tenor who, tired of philandering, seeks the girl of his long dreams.

Brock Pemberton, the producer, has many productions of high merit to his credit. From dramatic reviewing in New York he shifted to stage production work, getting his initial training as press representative for Arthur Hopkins.

The producer is given credit for introducing Luigi Pirandello, internationally famous playwright, to the world. Until Mr. Pemberton had sensed the theatrical value of Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author," that writer's works had not been played outside of Italy. He later did his "Henry IV" as "The Living Mask." Mr. Pemberton also produced the first plays of Zona Gale ("Lulu Bett"), Sidney Howard ("Swords") and Maxwell Anderson ("White Desert").

His later productions, for Cora vehicle, "Mister Pitt," in which Walter Huston, now raised as one of the foremost stage actors, made his first appearance outside of vaudeville.

EYES DEEP AS SEA'S BLUE

Marcella Gaudel, coming to the Lyric next Monday, with the Herbert Liveright presentation of Bram Stoker's novel, "Dracula," is a vivacious brunette with blue eyes, native of Minneapolis.

With the alternative of a college education or an engagement with the Bainbridge Stock Co. of Minneapolis, Miss Gaudel chose the theater, a direct manifestation of a legitimate heritage. Her parents are on the American stage and her grandparents were in the French dramatic field. From this stock company experience, Miss Gaudel graduated to the wider field in support of Henrietta Crossman, William Courtney, Martha Hedman, Mary Young and Marjorie Rambeau, at various times, and finally with "Dracula."

'POP!' GOES THE CORK FOR FUN

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

MARIE DRESSLER, a comic kingpin who can also do sterner things when called on, as she showed recently in "Min and Bill," harks back to mirthful mood in "Reducing," in which she is paired with Polly Moran for stellar honors. The picture, which is the feature at Loew's State, fairly exudes laughs. We have come to think that whenever the "blues" see Marie's name in the lights, these talkie days, they chase themselves afar off.

* * *

ANY SORT OF a plot will serve Polly and Marie. Gracious goodness! these two could be left to themselves to plow after the red cow, so far as screen play mechanics go; and what they would achieve, would surpass most of the hand-me-down offerings that are passed along to us. Marie in "Reducing" has a hubby and three children. Leave it to her to handle them with gusto. They pile into a Pullman, and the fun begins. Soon there's a three-ring circus, and then some, when Marie goes to work in Polly's gat-thin-quick emporium. Marie fairly turns the place upside down, "lifts" faces into laughter by her antics, makes whoopee with the fat-reducing implements at the risk of clients' lives, and tickles the audience into spasms of merriment. It's all very gay, indeed, and better than a million doctor's prescriptions for low spirits.

Marie Dressler

* * *

FARCE MUST have its serious moments, wherefore the scenarist provides lovers of the type of William Collier, Jr., Sally Eilers, Anita Page and William Bakewell. They get all snarled up in their romances, and just when their heart-break seems imminent, the sun shines through, and no less a body than the now irate Marie snatches up a weapon of the old horse pistol variety, and dashes off to foil a villain and help a forlorn swain. When Marie comes to the rescue, evil runs to cover and joy reigns supreme. The romantic mixed in "Reducing" is of trivial importance; lovers are negligible; Marie and Polly hold the fort, assisted niftily by Lucien Littlefield, and a couple of boys, Billy Taylor and Jay Ward.

* * *

WELL GIVE the shade of glory to Marie, over Polly. But they're both excruciatingly funny, and we would be willing to admit it to be a toss-up between these two hilarious ladies of comedy talents. The main thing is that they're both stellar, and teamed together. There isn't a better pair on screen, or stage.

* * *

"REDUCING" WAS directed for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by Charles F. Riesner, who did the same job for that other Dressler-Moran mirthquake, "Caught Short!" The Riesner-Dressler-Moran trio can be counted on to make a triple play for box office success any time.

If laughing makes one grow fat, then "Reducing" is sure-fire aid for ailing digestion.

The New Plays

TREMONT—"A Month In the Country," a Russian comedy by Turgenev. Third of the Theater Guild's presentations. Included in the cast are Mme. Alla Nazimova, who is featured; Earle Larimore, Henry Travers, Cecil Yapp, Edward Arnold, James Todd and Francesca Bruning. Staged by Reuben Mamoulian.

* * *

* * *

SHUBERT—(Opening Thursday) "A Wonderful Night," operetta based on Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus." Included in the cast are Archie Leach, Clifford Newdahl, Joseph Lertora, Robert Pitkin, Gladys Baxter and Bernard Gorcey. Produced by J. J. Shubert.

Plays Remaining

"June Moon" at the Wilbur. (Second week.) Here you find the song writer at his best—and worst. Personally conducted tour through Tin Pan Alley, with a laugh at every step.

* * *

Grace George in "The First Mrs. Fraser" at the Plymouth. (Third week.) In which an amiable divorce by the British code is unscrambled with everybody's approval. Highly amusing in mood and manner.

* * *

"Strictly Dishonorable" at the Colonial. (Third week.) Now you have the humors of prohibition blended with startling amatory adventures in a strictly moral speakeasy. The season's most adroit comedy.

* * *

'ST. ELMO' IS TAKEN FROM SHELF FOR FILMING

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor for Universal Service
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Jan. 10.—"East Lynne" must have been profitable, or at least the Fox company must have expectations that it will be a success, as they are reviving another classic. This one is "St. Elmo," by Augusta Evans. That book has been read almost as many times as the Bible, "Pilgrim's Progress" or "John Halifax, Gentleman." One of my earliest recollections is taking the volume out of the bookcase and reading it and being told I was too young to understand it.

It is another story of regeneration, with all the sobs, drama and sentimentality of the fiction written in the mid-Victorian era. That excellent actor, Warner Baxter, has been chosen to play St. Elmo. They tell me that Warner is going to give the country something to talk about when he is seen in "Doctors' Wives" which is now being directed by Frank Borzage.

Jumping Joe Savoldi, and I reckon you know him as well as any of the movie stars, is to make an exceedingly interesting story for Paramount, if current report can be believed. When Savoldi was here he had many tests made, and as all the world knows, agreed to make a picture at the Paramount studios. He plays the part of Al Capone in a Paramount underworld story which Charles Furthman is writing. Charlie, who knows his Chicago as well as anyone, has had a hand in every important underworld picture turned out by Paramount. There is no doubt that the name of Al Capone will be changed, for who would dare to do a film imitation of the underworld king?

Is Maurice Chevalier's popularity sufficient to let him make a musical comedy and get the applause that he has enjoyed in the past? Paramount seems to feel that not even a musical play can hurt the French idol with his public. That depends, of course, upon the musical numbers, ensembles, and whether or not Chevalier is given a good story. George Straus will return from abroad to write the music and Clifford Grey has been signed up for the lyrics. M. Chevalier will have both the fascinating Claudette Colbert and Miriam Hopkins in his next, tentatively called "The Smiling Lieutenant." It will be interesting to see just what happens for a Chevalier musical play is of almost as much interest as a Charlie Chapin silent movie.

Everyone who has read "The Maltese Falcon," that is, every male actor, has wished that he might play the part originally intended for John Barrymore. Test after test has been made and it is interesting to know that Ricardo Cortez wins the part opposite Bebe Daniels, who will be starred in "The Maltese Falcon" as her first Warner Brothers picture under her new contract. After seeing what Ricardo did in "Her Man," I am not surprised that he has been given an opportunity. Warners have let it be known that they are not signing Ricardo Cortez because of "Her Man," but because of work they have seen in the rushes of "Big Business Girl." You cannot blame Warners for choosing their own picture, can you?

* * *

Heaven help us. Is this a title? "The Impatient Virgin." It is the name of Don Henderson Clark's new book, and apparently the title his friend Howard Hughes, or maybe it was the story, for he has purchased it. Don H. Clark is the lad who wrote "Louis Beretti," "The Reign of Rothstein" and "Millie," and all of them have been sold down the river for movies. When an author can sell his stories to the movies before they are out of the galley proofs we have to hand it to him.

* * *

C. Aubrey Smith, who came over from England to play the part of the father in "The Barker Father," Marion Davies' last picture, was hoping he might remain in Hollywood. He liked not only the t wn but his introduction into the movies and said that if he could get the right opportunity he would be with us for some time. Yesterday he signed with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to play the part of Geo. Grossmith in "Daybreak." Ramon Novarro's next, so it looks as if opportunity not only knocked at the door but walked in. Maria Provost plays the part of Marion Davies' next, "It's a Wise Child." If Maria does as good a job as she does in "Paid," she will get some more applause for her efforts.

SCREEN VIES WITH STAGE

Loew's Orpheum has a sterling bill this new week. "Paid," the new Joan Crawford vehicle on the screen, has everything to recommend it in the way of first rate entertainment. Phil Emerson's Original Diamonds are the vaudeville topliners. Their colorful offering is a novelty musical revue in which songs, dances and original band orchestrations are prominently featured.

Lots of "Whoopee" and "Show Girl," the youthful comedian and entertainer, Buddy Doyle, wisecracks and impersonates several of America's most noted blackface entertainers. Miss Peggy Hoover, his fair assistant, adds unusual dancing talent to the turn. James B. Donovan and Marie Lee, erstwhile Boston favorites, set a fast comedy pace with their clever laugh sketch.

THREE FILMS AT THE PARK

Another triple bill is offered at the Park. At the top is "Captain Thunder," picturing adventures of a Mexican known as Captain Thunder. He is the latest version of the Don Juan tradition. Victor Varconi plays the title role. Featured in the cast are Fay Wray, Charles Judels and Natalie Moorhead.

Another photoplay is "Midnight Special," depicting two trains in a head-on collision. The cast has Glenn Tryon, Merna Kennedy, Tom O'Brien, Mary Carr, Phillips Smalley, Jimmy Aubrey, Richard Kane and Norman Phillips, Jr.

Chapter 3 is shown in the entertaining Universal "serial," of which the Park is offering a new chapter each succeeding week, under the general title of "The Spell of the Circus." This third chapter is titled "Racing With Death."

Marjorie Church

On Monday evening, Jan. 19, Marjorie Church, Boston pianist, will give a concert in Jordan Hall. Her program will include numbers by Bach, Scarlatti, Beethoven, Mompou, Granados, Albeniz, Liszt, Scriabin and Chopin.

FREIGHT FOR THE RIDE

Walter Huston, star of "Criminal Code," now at RKO Keith's, is known as George M. Cohan's and Eugene O'Neill's favorite screen actor. He made his first "rip East on a freight train. It's was 18, he had been playing his first stage engagement and his show "went broke."

He had a good singing voice and could dance anything from ball room steps to a fast clog, but he was a long time getting a job. At last he got one with a stock company playing in "Convict Stripes," a melodrama by Hal Reid, father of the late Wallace Reid. Next Huston toured the country in "The Sign of the Cross."

He tried to abandon the stage and for four years managed water and electric plants in Nevada, but back he came to his first love, the stage, in vaudeville, teamed with a girl who became his wife, Bayonne Whipple.

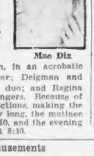
Mutual Burlesque Shows

Gayety

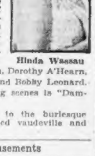
As part of the big Gayety anniversary program which opens Monday with the matinee, there will be three star vaudeville acts in addition to the "Speed Girls" burlesque company, headed by Mike Sachs and Mae Dix. The whole company will enter into the spirit of the carnival of fun, which will mark the birthday. The vaudeville acts include Richards, Fonzal and Regan, in an acrobatic dancing number; Deigman and Ball, harmony duo; and Regina and Arthur, singers. Because of the extra attractions, making the show unusually long, the matinee will start at 2:15, and the evening performance at 8:15.



Mae Dix

Howard

At the Old Howard for the entire week will be seen in person the singing and dancing beauty, Hinda Wassau. She will appear as an extra attraction with the Jazz Babies burlesque. Bert Bertrand and Harry S. LeVan will have comedy roles. Much interest centers in the appearance of Gertrude Hairston. Others in the cast will be Bob Snyder, Thelma Carlton, Nona and Edith, Dorothy A'Hearn, Earl Meyers and Bobby Leonard. One of the big scenes is "Damaged Goods."



Hinda Wassau

In addition to the burlesque will be selected vaudeville and pictures.

People's Symphony to Give Concert Tomorrow

The People's Symphony Orchestra of Boston will give its fifth concert of the year in Jordan Hall with Thompson Stone conducting, tomorrow at 3:15 p. m. Anton Witek, a violinist of international reputation, and soloist at a recent concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be the guest artist. He will play a Beethoven Concerto. The remainder of the program includes "Overture to Euryanthe" by Weber and "New World Symphony" by Dvorak.

"Because I Loved You" Feature at Repertory

The Repertory will flash upon its screen Wednesday the first showing in Boston of Germany's first all-talking production, "Because I Loved You." Mady Christians is seen at her best. Walter Janknhn and Hans Stuwe are in the splendid cast.

Igor Gorin

Igor Gorin, lyric baritone and Viennese opera singer, will give a recital in Jordan Hall on Wednesday evening. His program will include ancient airs by Amarilli and Tregiorni; songs by Wolf, Schubert and Strauss; operatic numbers by Verdi, Wagner and Korngold.

Reinald Werrenrath

Reinald Werrenrath returns to Boston for an "intimate" recital of Lieder in Jordan Hall, Thursday evening. In addition to his singing, Mr. Werrenrath will comment in his informal manner.

LETTERS FROM READERS

Letters from readers on current subjects are welcomed. Letters should not exceed 250 words in length, should be written on one side of the paper, and must bear the writer's name. Names will be omitted in publication, if requested. Address Editor, Boston American, 8 Winthrop sq.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

One of the great blessings from your Christmas fund has just been brought to my attention.

A very poor family in the West End were bemoaning their lot. The father of that family had just made a dollar. The next day was Sunday. They had been in the habit of giving fifty cents a week to the support of the church they attended.

They gave as usual the fifty cents on that Sunday, and used the remainder of the dollar to buy food. Then they prayed for more help and waited. They kept on praying, and a short time afterwards the Boston American sent them two chickens.

Their delight is more than I can express in words.

The incident is worth considering of the kind of work that the Boston Baptist Bethel City Missionary is doing in this city, and the way that your paper co-operated with us at Christmas.

Elevated Trustees Defend New Improvement Plan

Editor Boston American:

May we have the privilege of answering a letter which appeared in your column, "Letters From American Readers," on Saturday, January 3?

Attacking the public trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway on the score of "extravagance," the writer states that "they are demanding about $42,000,000 to spend for improvements at all."

The writer is apparently unaware of the present procedure with respect to the authorization of rapid transit extensions.

The trustees of the Metropolitan Transit District, which he probably confuses with the trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway, recommended to the Metropolitan Transit Council, composed of the mayors of the cities and chairmen of the boards of selectmen of the towns in the Metropolitan Transit District, a program of rapid transit extensions to be carried out over a period of years.

These extensions, utilizing in part existing subways, would provide two rapid transit routes for sections in need of better transportation. The council, with only three dissenting votes out of a total of 40, approved the recommendations of the Metropolitan Transit trustees.

A bill embodying these extensions will be presented by the Metropolitan Transit Council to the incoming Legislature for its action. If the Legislature approves these extensions, the matter will then be referred to some board other than the public trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway for preparation of final plans, and only then will come to the Elevated trustees for ratification of plans and authorization of a lease of the proposed system.

These improvements, if authorized, will be constructed by a public body from money borrowed on public credit.

We cannot help but feel that the remark of your correspondent as to the effect that the public trustees of the Elevated "are demanding about $42,000,000 to spend for improvements ad lib" shows a lack of knowledge of the facts.

Your correspondent, inquiring as to whether there is any "check" on the "extravagance" of the public trustees, remarks: "Perhaps they go ahead no matter how much it costs." The public trustees are charged with the responsibility of operating the railway within the revenues. Every operating economy consistent with good service is practiced. As evidence that there is no "extravagance" in the operation of the railway, may we point out that for the year ending Dec. 31, 1930, operating expenses were more than two and one-half million less than for the year ending Dec. 31, 1928. This reduction has been brought about through owman cae operation and other necessary economies.

Your correspondent inquired as to whether the accounts of the Elevated were audited or whether the "auditing is done by the 'El' officials themselves." Your correspondent should know that an independent firm of auditors makes an annual audit of the books of the railway. Moreover, after completion of the audit, a report is filed with the Legislature, is printed, and is available to the public. Furthermore, there is filed annually and quarterly with the State Department of Public Utilities detailed reports giving information with respect to the railway.

There is available at all times complete data on the operation of the Boston Elevated Railway. Any person desiring any facts with respect to the railway can easily obtain them from these sources or from the management of the railway which is always glad to furnish information.

Strangely enough, your correspondent appears to condemn rapid transit extensions in one breath and in the next claims that passengers "are defrauded of their time by having to change cars at Ashmont." Presumably, the writer would have had the rapid transit train service extended from Ashmont to Mattapan. The cost of extending the Dorchester tunnel from Andrew to Ashmont and of constructing the high speed trolley line from Ashmont to Mattapan was $12,015,705. This expenditure furnished the southerly section with exceptionally fine service. Nowhere in this country is there better service. It would be entirely unfair to the rest of the Metropolitan District to extend the train service beyond Ashmont at a great expense when improvements in the transportation facilities of other parts of the district are much more needed.

Your correspondent describes as "reckless extravagance" the expenditure of money for construction of steel shelters at the four stations on the high speed trolley line. These shelters were furnished at the request of the residents of the district and for their comfort. They were built by the Boston Transit Department, are owned by the city of Boston, and are included in the lease to the railway of the Dorchester tunnel.

The total cost for all four shelters was $10,200, or an average of less than $2,600 each. Your correspondent claims these shelters should have been constructed of wood, but steel, and cites the shelters at Franklin Park, Brookline Village and Coolidge Corner. The cost of these shelters, built from 1901 to 1913 with lower wage costs, corresponds approximately to the cost of the steel shelters erected on the high speed trolley line. The steel structures are more attractive and will have a longer period of usefulness.

We are taking the liberty of discussing at considerable length all the points brought up by your correspondent because we are anxious to furnish the public information and to correct any false impression which may have been created by his letter.

Very truly yours,

Perjurer as Bad as Murderer, She Says

Editor Boston American:

Henry Feasenden has written in your column about the evil of perjury in the courts. People who injure innocent citizens should be punished by large fines and by having their names published in the press as the most dangerous of all criminals (except murderers).

However, perjurers can kill in a way which is far worse than to physically take one's life. I know of cases where $42,000 would have been preferable, and especially as the victims were not the only ones to suffer—as the perjurers caused untold agony for members of the families concerned. What agony the poor creatures of lesser advantages must have when they are accused falsely and cannot defend themselves for lack of money. Isn't it better for the victims of perjurers to make it an aim in life to try to assist others who are suffering from the same persecution? I hope there will be many letters on this—the most important subject in life.

One Sign in City Points to North

Editor Boston American:

More than a year ago in your letter column a question was asked about any sign in Boston which would show points of the compass pointing north. After a long search, there is only one sign that I could find on the pavement of the sidewalk. That sign is in School st., a golden arrow imbedded in the pavement and pointing north. As far as I find, this is the only sign pointing to the north to be found on the pavements of Boston.

Vet Wants Others to Help Bonus Fight

Editor Boston American:

We veterans have been looking to the American for news concerning the bonus bill. Anxious for news in your paper of Mr. Peabody of Lynn. He sent us some petitions and we sent them back to him with 1000 to 1200 names on them in a couple of days.

Would ask all veterans of Maine, Vermont and Rhode Island to hurry up and get busy, as Portsmouth, N. H., has sent in around 2000 or more names, and still is going strong. If Mr. Hearst will be always the friend he has to us, we surely will see light.

We also read the Advertiser. Vets asked me to write to you. Seeing you had published so much for others, help us to get the Pelman bill passed.

Dr. Miklas Is to Speak in the First International Broadcast From Vienna

"Austria on the Threshold of 1931" will be the subject of an address presented by Dr. Wilhelm Miklas, president of the Austrian republic, when he speaks to an American air audience from Vienna tomorrow in the first international broadcast ever heard from that city. The broadcast will be heard over the C. B. S. chain, locally from WNAC from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m. Edgar L. Prochnik, Austrian minister to the U. S., will introduce Dr. Miklas from Washington at 12:26.

Dr. Miklas, second President of the republic which arose from the revolution at the end of the World War, is an educator by vocation, having been a high school professor for 20 years.

The broadcast tomorrow will inaugurate a series to be heard regularly from European capitals.

NYE ON RADIO TONIGHT

A discussion of "The influence of money in political campaigns" will be discussed by Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, chairman of the Senate campaign investigating committee, in the Radio Forum heard over WNAC at 9:30 tonight. Senator Nye has investigated senatorial election campaigns in many of the states and it is expected that from the information obtained legislation will be drafted seeking in some measure to regulate the expenditure for senatorial seats.

In recent weeks the Nye committee has been sifting data the country between Robert H. Lucas, director of the Republican National committee and Senator Norris. It is expected that Senator Nye's talk tonight will refer to the controversy.

RADIO Personalities

Most of the NBC pages on the night staff attend college during the day and many on the day staff attend the RCA Radio Institute in the evenings. . . KATHLEEN STEWART, NBC pianist, says she has a cook book along side her music selections. She is an avid recipe reader. . . . CBS can employ more than 50 engineers at its key station, WABC, New York. . . ROLLO JACKSON, tuba player in the U. S. Coast Guard Band, CBS broadcasters, is a full-blooded Seneca Indian. . . EDDIE MORGERSON, he who bombastically tells you "they're toasted," resents being called a "matinee idol"; and we don't see how the phrase fits him. . . . FLOYD GIBBONS, who has just finished writing a book of his experiences, asked his radio audience to suggest a title. And now Floyd has a squad of secretaries sorting fanmail suggestions for a title. . . HARRY SALTER leader of the Henry-George orch., has a Wed. afternoon WABC ensemble broadcast in which five of the players are themselves leaders and soloists. . . TORCHA SEIDEL ceases melodies from a violin priced at $75,000. Yes, a Stradivarius. . . The Yankee dialect of Uncle Abe and David is running asclaim in the middle west. Newspaper polls in Chicago and Kansas City find the boys to be one of the most popular radio features.

Concerning RADIO

By BILL WHIPPLE

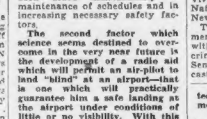
Behind the scenes in the realm of radio science is constantly at work delving deeper and deeper into what to us ordinary mortals are mysteries of receiving and sending radio apparatus, ever seeking to make improvement's, to simplify and reduce the cost of operation and manufacture.

We are all more or less aware of this fact; comparison of present-day receivers with those of a scant two years ago are obvious results of sciences' efforts.

But what the great majority of us are not conscious of, or even give much thought to, are the great strides being made by this same mysterious force, science, in its experiments whereby radio may take a greater part in the preservation of human life in the air and on the sea.

Science has already solved one of the two major aviation problems in respect to flying under conditions of little or no visibility, and is well on its way to solving the other.

The first problem, now overcome, was the practical development of the radio-range beacon system, whereby the pilot is kept accurately on his course and informed at the same time of the approximate point over which he is flying. Through this system commercial air-transportation has been aided immeasurably in maintenance of schedules and in increasing necessary safety factors.



The second factor which science seems destined to overcome in the very near future is the development of a radio aid which will permit an air-pilot to land "blind" at an airport—that is one which will practically guarantee him a safe landing at the airport under conditions of little or no visibility. With this on the list of scientific achievements which have occurred in the past few years in radio and in general and the world of commerce in particular, a tremendous debt will have been made in the safe-guarding of human lives.

One other radio safety device for ships at sea and which science hopes soon to perfect, is the use of a pencil of sound as an underwater "searchlight." This pencil of sound is produced by "supersonics," that is, by comparatively short wave lengths, produced at present from vibrating quartz crystals.

The vibrating diaphragm when submerged may be swung about under water, and when the supersonic waves happen to strike the submerged portion of an iceberg, sufficient energy will be reflected back to be received by the device similar to the transmitter, and subsequently amplified and detected audibly by heterodyne methods.

Important Week-End Programs

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor will speak from Washington on the topic "Overcoming Unemployment" over the Columbia System network tonight at 10:00 o'clock.

Tonight at 9:00 o'clock over WJZ there will be broadcast a fictional grand jury hearing, sponsored by the New York American, wherein a district attorney will seek the indictment of Dolores Devine, cabaret dancer, for the murder of Damon Fenwick, multi-millionaire architect.

Minister to the United States, will be the speaker during the broadcast of the Conclave of Nations over the Columbia System tomorrow afternoon from 1:30 to 2:00 o'clock.

Radio Fans to Hear Death Trial of Robert Graham

Broadcast by American From WEEI Will Start on Monday

FRED M. J. SHEENAN

Boston and New England will hear their first radio murder trial Monday night when "The Trial of Robert Graham" will be broadcast from WEEI at 6:30.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred M. J. Sheenan of the Suffolk county prosecuting force will be the prosecuting attorney in the drama, while Thomas H. Mahoney, prominent Boston criminal and corporation attorney, will handle the defense in the radio broadcast trial.

COUNCILOR AS JUDGE

If the radio trial, the first broadcast of its kind, proves of sufficient interest to radio listeners others will be broadcast in the future by station WEEI.

The initial broadcast will in reality be a prelude to the photoplay, "The Criminal Code," featuring Walter Huston, noted film star now playing at R. K. O. Keith's Theatre and is to be sent over the air by the Boston Evening American in collaboration with the R. K. O. Keith Theaters of Boston and the National Broadcasting Company.

FIRST TRIAL ON AIR

The script and dialogue of the radio trial has been written by Newcomb E. Thompson of the Boston Evening American radio staff who will also be heard as the defendant, Robert Graham.

"The Trial of Robert Graham" as a radio offering is an innovation in New England radio production, coming close on "The Trial of Vivienne Ware," presented by the National Broadcasting Company at New York.

This broadcast brought wide comment from listeners as presented with George Gordon Battle, famed criminal counsel of New York and Sen. Wagner of New York in the cast.

THOMAS H. MAHONEY JAMES M. BRENNAN

THE FIRST RADIO murder trial ever broadcast in New England will go out over the air Monday night at 6:30 from Station WEEI, sponsored by the Keith Theaters of Boston, National Broadcasting Company and the Boston Evening American. Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred M. J. Sheenan will fill the role of prosecutor, Atty. Thomas H. Mahoney will act as defense attorney, while Councillor Brennan will sit as judge.

Gripping Story of Society Girl Whose Love Entangled Her With Underworld

Connie Meets Garson Who Reveals Strange Tale of Her Early Life

"THAT'S HER, all right," the girl said in a harsh voice. "We might as well go to her and get it over." The man demurred.

The Story So Far.

Connie Calvert, beautiful daughter of a rich family, lives with her widowed mother in a Connecticut town not far from New York. She is to be married to Jim Tracy a pleasing young man who works in a brokerage office. The day before her wedding she receives a letter which greatly disturbs her. She sends Jim home. Jim, however, sensing that something is wrong parks his car in a secluded spot and late in the evening hears Connie's roadster leave her garage. Connie is evidently headed for New York alone. He trails her but his gasoline gives out and he loses her. She goes to a cheap restaurant in Tenth Ave.

Now Continue.

By Robert Terry Shannon

(Author of "The Taxi-Dancer" and other well-known serials.)

THE WAITER shifted his weight to the back of the chair next to her.

"Well you can get cheese or hot ham and egg or——"

Connie broke in sharply. "Ham! I said."

"All right, cutie. Don't get excited. I'm bringing it along wid a bunch of vilets in two minutes." Then he moved along toward the kitchen, flipping a soiled towel over his shoulder.

Connie was becoming slightly alarmed by the waiter's very evident admiration and his unusual assurance that it was quite all right for him to force his preposterous attentions. No one in the restaurant seemed to think it at all irregular.

Connie Watched

Some curious instinct warned her to go while there was yet time. She opened her purse and took from it a dollar. This, she thought, ought to pay for her coffee and sandwich. She would leave at once.

At another table in a far corner of the dingy room a man and a girl were watching Connie with avid eyes.

"That's her, all right," the girl said, in a harsh voice. "We might as well go to her and get it over."

"Nix, kid, you leave it to me, understand. Leave it all to me."

At Connie surveyed the room again preparatory to leaving, her sporting instinct got the better of her.

"Stick around, Connie," she told herself. "You've come this far—you really ought to see it through."

For the first time in her life, she was called upon to face ugliness—the harsh, bitter taste of personal disillusionment. At one stroke, the letter had wiped away the proud, almost smug security of her social existence. With hellish cunning it had been timed to reach her on the eve of her wedding.

While she was waiting she took the letter out and read it again. Written on plain paper, the handwriting was somehow childlike, yet obviously antagonistically informative. Undoubtedly a woman had written it.

The Letter

"I know all about you," it read. "I know more about you than you know about yourself—and if I ever spill what I know, it's going to raise the deuce with your happiness. You're going to marry a society fellow, I see by the newspapers. Your picture looked pretty swell. Little you know that I hold a terrible secret about you in the hollow of my hand. You've been living on the fat of the land when I've been taking the hard knocks all my life. I think it's time for a showdown and an even break between us. Don't get the idea that this is any fake stuff. Everything I got to say is on the level, and I can prove every bit of it. I've kept still long enough, and I'm going to break loose unless you can see fit to do the right thing. It's all up to you, Miss Connie Calvert. You can ignore this and take the consequences or you can meet me tonight around 12 o'clock at Joe's Place, 1536 Tenth ave. All you have to do is come there alone and I'll make myself known to you. You can do as you please about it, whether you stay away or come, but rest assured that I'm not kidding you. Not for a minute. You can either meet me here or meet me in the courts.

K. C."

Connie folded up the letter and returned it to her handbag. The thing angered her. Anger, with a blind, helpless kind of distress. Back of the actual meaning of the words was some inherent reality that forbade her dismissing the threat as a mere scurrilous insult. Whoever had written it had meant business—Connie could see it, feel it.

Eyes Grew Sullen

All of the combative essence of her nature rose to meet the challenge. Better by far to face it through now than to leave any lingering menace to rise up later to haunt her chance of happiness. Yet she was not thinking of herself exclusively, nor of Jim Tracy. Her mother, gentle and unsophisticated, was not going to be hurt by any dirty viciousness.

Connie's eyes, as she waited, grew sullen with contemptuous aversion for this place, for these people. Not fully, however, did she realize the desperate character of her surroundings. Her situation, she felt, was disagreeable—but not dangerous. Had she known more of the underworld, she probably would not have been here at all.

In the back of the restaurant, a man and a girl sat at a small table in intrepid conversation.

"I tell you, Kitty," the man said, levelly, "you're not going to get anywhere with this business—handling it yourself. Blackmail's not your line. Let me talk to that girl."

He had white teeth, a dark, handsome face and brown, pene-

Yeggs Miss $400 in Roxbury Safe

BANK ORDERS 25 MACHINES BE HELD

City and Town Officials Hit by Mixup Over Notes of Defunct Firm

The failure of a Lynn automobile company a few months ago will cause some 25 car owners of Lynn, Swampscott and Marblehead to lose their machines, even though they are paid for in full, it was learned today.

Constable Eben Sears of Lynn has seized five machines and has a list of 20 more owned by city and town officials, policemen, firmen, lawyers and business men, because notes were paid to a Boston bank and the Lynn bank involved in the deal did not receive the money due.

POLICEMAN TO FIGHT.

The Lynn bank, the Security Trust Co., holds the original liens on the machines sold and, even though the Boston bank has been receiving payments on the canvasses of which are fully paid for—action has been taken by the Lynn trust company.

Patrolman Arthur Vaughan, of the Lynn police, with his car fully paid for, is planning a battle to retain ownership. Constable Sears attempted to seize the car, but was frustrated by the patrolman.

BOSTON BANK PAID.

The bankrupt dealer of the cars borrowed the money to buy the cars from a Boston bank, and then sold the leases to the Security Trust Co. The Boston bank has been paid its money, but the Lynn bank has been left without its investment in the failure of the dealer.

SHOTS FLY IN GIRL ATTACK CHASE

Youth Seized as Suspect After Volley of Bullets; Alleged Companion Sought

A Wakefield youth, captured after a running gun battle with policemen in Lawrence, is under arrest, and a Melrose man, who escaped, is being sought in Greater Boston, after an alleged attack on a pretty 18-year-old Lawrence girl today.

The youth under arrest gave his name as Walter Powers, 19, of Essex st., Wakefield. His companion, he said, is Philip Irick, 22, of Melrose.

The latter escaped through a dragnet of Lawrence police, commandeered a taxicab and drove to Sullivan sq., Charlestown, where police lost his trail.

The chase which resulted in Powers' capture threw Essex st., main business artery of Lawrence, into a near panic shortly after 10 a. m. today, when Policeman Michael Shea fired volley after volley at Powers and his companion from a taxicab. Hundreds of Saturday morning shoppers scurried for safety as bullets ricocheted off buildings.

The girl's name is being withheld by police, due to serious illness of her mother. She lives on Bailey st., Lawrence, and was returning from a ball in North Andover when attacked.

Malden Man Quizzed in Murder of Baker

A man giving his name as Dominick Florentine was arrested today at a Henry st., Malden, address. Inspector John Linehan of the Malden police, accompanied by officers attached to Station 7, East Boston, took Florantine to East Boston for questioning in connection with the murder of Antonio Umano, East Boston Baker, several days ago.

Boston Area Postal Personnel Shifted

Chnges in personnel and contracts in the Boston postal district were announced today as follows: Frank L. Wallace, foreman, from Cambridge A branch to Burlington ave. annex; John J. Fitzgerald, No. 2, foreman, from Burlington ave. station to Cambridge A branch; Louis Handman, appointed clerk-in-charge of station No. 120, Grove Hall district, Boston; Eva L. Shepard, clerk-in-charge of station No. 109, Waltham, discontinued.

Thugs Get $32

Walking on Commercial street, near North End park, last night, Charles E. Hoyt of 19 Hinsdale st., Auburn, Me., was seized by two footpads who took $32 from his pockets.

YEGGS BALKED IN SAFE BREAK

Thieves were balked early today in an attempt to force open a safe containing $400 in the office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. on the second floor at 4258 Washington st., West Roxbury.

They tipped the safe, which weighs 1000 pounds, on its back, but failed to get the door off by the "can opener" method. Police believe there were four or five men involved. They forced three doors before reaching the insurance office.

Youth Arrested in Jewelry Store Break

Sergt. Leo Hoban of the Lagrange street station, receiving a description of a youth who smashed the plate glass window of a Washington street loan company and stole jewelry and clothing, arrested William J. Ryan, 20, of Mosley st., Dorchester, after a short struggle in Kneeland st. early today. Police say the youth had the stolen articles on his person at the time of the arrest.

Doctors to Lecture to Medical Club

Two lectures to be given at the Middlesex Hospital, East Cambridge, before the Middlesex Club, were announced today by Dr. Robert H. Nichols, director of the club.

Lester Whittaker, M. D., will speak Monday evening on "The Physiology and Pathology of the Gall Bladder Relative to Its Treatment." On January 19, Charles E. Mongan, M. D., will lecture on "Some Phases of the Modern Practice of Medicine."

Ann Barton, Society Girl Flier, to Wed Her Tutor

Boston society today learned from Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Barton of 51 Crafts road, Chestnut Hill, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ann Barton, to Olcott Shipman Payson, a member of a prominent Portland, Me., family and her flying instructor since last fall.

Miss Barton is a member of the Vincent Club and the Junior League and Mr. Payson is vice-president of Skyways, Inc.

The couple met for the first time when Miss Barton began to take flying lessons at the Boston airport last fall. She has nearly completed the necessary flying time for her first solo flight.

She is a graduate of the Beaver Country Day School of Brookline and the Oldfields school in Maryland.

Payson is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has been flying since 1927.

His family is one of the most prominent in Portland where he was at one time manager of the Scarboro airport. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Payson and is a descendant of the Rev. Edward Payson, widely known clergyman of colonial times.

MISS ANN BARTON, society girl flier, is to marry Olcott Shipman Payson of Portland, Me., her flying instructor. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Barton, of Chestnut Hill, parents of Miss Barton, announced the engagement.

Mrs. MacDonnell of Dorchester Is Dead

Mrs. Catherine L. MacDonnell of Victory rd., Dorchester, wife of Robert M. MacDonnell of the Boston postoffice, died suddenly early today after being seized with convulsions in a doctor's office yesterday.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by her father, Michael J. Doyle, three brothers and two sisters. Funeral services will be held Monday in St. Ambrose Church, Dorchester.

Newton Aids Jobless

At a special meeting held last night, Newton aldermen appropriated $20,000 for improvement of playgrounds in order to provide employment for Newton men out of work.

LAST RITES ARE HELD IN APPLETON CHAPEL

Funeral services for Edward Channing, professor emeritus at Harvard and noted historian, were held today from his home, 5 Craigie circle, Cambridge.

Hundreds of friends, members of the Harvard faculty, and Harvard students attended the services conducted by Rev. James Hardy Hopes at Appleton Chapel, on the Harvard grounds. The University choir sang. Among those who paid homage to the late professor included A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard, Dean A. C. Hanaford, and Prof. A. M. Schlesinger, head of the Harvard History Department.

Ushers were: Prof. S. E. Morison, head usher; Prof. J. P. Baxter, L. F. Mayo, Prof. R. B. Merriman, A. C. Potter, G. P. Winship and Prof. H. A. Yeomans. Burial was in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

Prof. Channing's death followed an attack of cerebral hemorrhage. It was only a short time after he had accomplished his life's ambition to complete his monumental history of the United States in eight volumes.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Alice Thatcher of West Newton, and two daughters, Miss Alice Channing of Cambridge, and Mrs. Willard P. Fuller of Dedham.

STATE PROBES TOWN ACCOUNT

Theodore N. Wardwell, State accountant, today found a discrepancy of $404 in the accounts of W. H. Brackett, town treasurer of Middleboro. The town books covered the period from January 1, 1929, to September 30, 1930.

Wardwell notified Lewis F. Harding, chairman of the Middleboro Board of Selectmen, about the discrepancy and asked for an explanation. Brackett is also town collector.

Rescued N. Y. Fishing Crew Landed Here

Saved as their food and water gave out, after three days of drifting on a windswept sea, the crew of the New York fishing dragger Stranger arrived at the Fish Pier today aboard their vessel, which was in tow of a Coast Guard patrol boat.

The engine of the dragger became disabled Tuesday night, according to Capt. John J. Whalen, and help did not arrive until last night when the Stranger had drifted to a point 15 miles off Pollock Rip lightship. Men at the lighthouse sighted the vessel and radioed for aid.

Auburndale Theft Suspect Confesses

Arrested today in connection with a series of house robberies in Auburndale, Frederick J. Walsh, 17, of Winn Pine st., Auburndale, confessed to three thefts and larceny of an automobile, according to police. He was held in $500 bail for the grand jury. Herbert B. Ferrick, 18, of Melrose st., Auburndale, arrested with Walsh, will be given a hearing Friday on the same charges.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned into the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Whatever Schmeling, Sharkey, Stribling say, isn't worth a dime!
They're only playing poker now, and hiding every sign
Of what really will be doing in the good old summer time.

That's why Tex Richard, cold-eyed gambler of Nome, Dawson, Circle City, Goldfield, was so successful as a fight promoter. The fellow who gambled under Northern Lights and blazing desert suns found fight promoting the same game of bluff, buncombe and talking the other fellow—John Q. Public—think "what is ain't and what ain't is."

If you cock your ear and listen carefully you will hear the ballyhoo bird crowing lustily above the bedlam occasioned by the warring fighters, managers, boxing commissions.

They are only dealing the cards now. Bluff and counter-bluff only have started. After the deal comes the draw. They haven't drawn cards yet, so why look for the showdown?

When the showdown really does take place, who will be found to have won the pot? I dunno. I dunno.

But you can bet all the tea that made the Boston Tea Party, what looks now would take place will not take place at all-at-all in the good old summer time.

A flock of 'ez' may be bluffed into thinking it will, however.

TAKING A PEEK AT THE HANDS

What are the logical moves in the big heavyweight scramble? How do the cards lay?

From the promoter's viewpoint and mayhap the public's, getting the best match or getting the most matches. From the managers' viewpoint, the "safest" match, and the fattest guarantee.

Good cards are scarce. Why stage one match if you can stake three?

Winner of second heavyweight elimination vs. Max Schmeling for the world's heavyweight championship, New York, Jersey City or Chicago.

We have a hunch that if Tex Rickard were alive either Wingfoot or Montreal, Canada, might be chosen as the battleground for one of the big matches.

Arrange a big heavyweight match in summer, late spring or early fall for Windsor or Montreal and give the public notice of it far enough in advance and thousands of Americans would make the trip.

MEET RAY AND DICK, THE LOPEZ TWINS

Pa Lopez crops in with his twins, Ray and Dick, the scrappingest twins since Blake and Jack Sullivan of Cambridge. Pay was good enough to win the 1929 national amateur title. Dick is coming along fast. The twins are only 19. Don't rush 'em along too fast. Pa, and one of your two aces may make the fistic grade.

There have been few sets of twins in boxing, but many brothers. Among them were Mike and Billy Gibbons, the Canadian middleweights; Leach and Marty Cross, Terry, Hughie and Phil Mendon Draper, Jack and Benny Leon, Montana Dan and Jack Sullivan, Jim and Jack Jeffries, Willie and Charlie Beecher, Joe and Bellfield Walcott, Fred and Henry Duffy, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, whose real name is Joseph Hagan, and his brother, Jack; Mike and Tom Gibbons.

William Harrison Dempsey's older brother, Bernard, fought many fights under the name of Jack Dempsey, before the Manassa Mauler ever was heard of. The late Johnny Dempsey, another of the clan, also stopped a few with his chin, but rough and tumble, not in the ring.

Glory be! Pat O'Shocker, the broth of a b'y from Salt Lake City, via County Mayo and way points, has worked into a star match. Ray Fabiani will pit the red-headed spalpeen against Rudy Dusek in the Garden next Friday. Ring for the ambulances and call the cops!

Tech Matmen to Face Yale Tonight

The M. I. T. wrestling team will meet the Yale grapplers in the Yale Gym at New Haven tonight.

The Engineer matmen have already one win to their credit this season over the C. C. N. Y. team. They won this meet two weeks ago b three points. Since that time Coach Jay Ricks has been holding practice every night in the Hangar gymnasium and feels sure that his men will show up well against the Elis.

TIGERS FACE ARROWS AT GARDEN

LINEUP AT GARDEN

BOSTON		PHILADELPHIA

Foster, rd		ld, Nichols
Mackey, ld		rd, Collier
Grant, g		g, Roberts

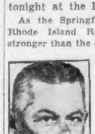
By BILL GRIMES

In their second conflict of the week, the Boston Tigers and Philadelphia Arrows will clash tonight at the Boston Garden.

As the Springfield Indians and Rhode Island Reds are notably stronger than the other three Canadian - American League contenders, who are about evenly matched, the big interest in the race centers around the battle for the odd playoff position, third place.



Bill Grimes

A week ago, Philadelphia was pressing Providence, but defeats by the New Haven Eagles and the Tigers have dropped the Quakers into the cellar, a half game in the rear of the Boston aggregation. New Haven broke a fourth place tie by beating the Tigers at the Garden last Saturday night and then shut out the Arrows, thereby jumping into third place, while the Tigers' victory in Philadelphia took them out of the cellar.

Despite the fact that they have been skidding badly for more than a week, the Arrows are still cocky and express themselves as confident that they will put the Tigers back—where is their opinion they belong—in last place.

Capt. Reg Mackey was chiefly responsible for the Tigers emerging from the bottom rung of the Can-Am ladder, when he whaled home two of his famous bullet shots after the Arrows had taken a 2 to 1 lead during the first period.

Loucks and Burke Will Play Tonight

Since returning from the Quaker City Johnny Loucks and Eddie Burke of the Tigers have been suffering from heavy colds, which forced them to be absent two practice sessions, but they have recovered and will be on the starting line tonight.

Due to the acquisition of Benny Grant and Al Wilson, plus the improvement Rollie Connacher has been showing of late, the Tigers are more formidable than at any time this season. Grant is rapidly gaining knowledge of the style of play of opponents, which is absolutely essential to the success of any goal minder, while Wilson is made of the right stuff to be an asset to any club.

Manager Eddie Powers expects great things of his first line, Johnny Loucks, Eddie Burke and Frank Boyd tonight, for this trio for the first time this season, failed to contribute at least one goal against the Arrows last Tuesday night in Philadelphia.

Capt. Reg Mackey will be on the defense with Yip Foster and Benny Grant, already a great favorite with the Tiger following in the city.

The Arrows are a heavy bodychecking outfit, which is a style of hockey the local fans enjoy, when played within the limits of the rules.

Soccer Game to Be Played in Garden Jan. 22

The management of the Boston Garden has completed arrangements to stage soccer at the North Station arena. The opening game will be played on January 22.

The Boston Celtic will play either Fall River or Providence on the opening night.

Of course, it will be a sort of a miniature contest, the teams being limited to seven men a side.

REPORT TUNNEY TO FIGHT AGAIN

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 10 (INS)—The Wisconsin News prints the following copyright story under the name of A. K. Schinner, sports editor:

Gene Tunney, former world's heavyweight champion, will box again.

The former flstic king, who retired in 1928, after his marriage to Polly Lauder, has informed Easton friends that he is considering an offer of $750,000 to return to the ring in the effort to bring the title back to the United States, and that it is his intention of accepting.

Ben Steinel, former Milwaukee sport writer and a close friend of Tunney through the latter's A. E. F. days in France, brought the story home with him from New York yesterday.

The former marine has been thinking seriously of a comeback for the last six months and recently confided his determination to his friends.

According to present plans, he will put in six months of boxing to fit himself for the ring and make his bid to bring the crown back to the United States in the fall, in the event Max Schmeling is successful in defending his title against either Young Stribling or Jack Sharkey, whom he is scheduled to meet this spring. If Stribling or Sharkey win, Tunney will probably engage the new champion.

Tunney Denies He Will Return

New York, Jan. 10 (INS)—Gene Tunney, through his secretary, today flatly denied reports that he contemplated returning to the prize ring.

"The report is absolutely untrue, and without any foundation whatever," the former heavyweight champion's secretary announced.

Boston S. A. Re-elects Fenno President

The annual election of officers of the Boston Soccer Football Association was held at the Boston Y. M. C. A. H. Bradlee Fenno was re-elected president; Ben Lewins, first vice-president; Dr. Wyman, second vice-president; Edward Murphy, recording secretary; James Randall, corresponding secretary; Tom Doherty, treasurer.

Tom Cummings, a 50-yard free-style swimmer, was made captain and Bob Muir and Ray Millard reappointed coaches.

Tom Gilligan to Go South With Senators

Tommy Gilligan of Newton, Exeter and Harvard, will try for an outfield berth on the Washington baseball club this coming spring. Tom has already left for Chicago, en route to Biloxi, Miss., where the clan of Walter Johnson will do its spring work.

Gilligan was more known as a football player than a diamond star. But he held down the right field berth for the Crimson in his sophomore year and was awarded the Wingate cup for all-round excellence.

SHARKEY GETS 'RUN-AROUND' IN GOTHAM

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—It has become a fistic axiom that a dozen conferences equal one heavyweight championship bout. So far the boys have used up only two or three of their quota in the situation revolving about Max Schmeling, Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling.

Schmeling is champion everywhere except in New York State; Sharkey has been cast by the New York Athletic Commission in a role that closely resembles that of "defending champion"; Stribling seems to be close to a unanimous choice as the outstanding challenger.

Second—The Hearst Milk Fund is attempting to make the same match somewhere outside of New York, probably in Detroit, with Cleveland and Philadelphia as possibilities.

Third—In event that Stribling balks at terms, the Milk Fund would shift to a match between Schmeling and Primo Carnera.

Milk Fund Committee Holds Whip Hand

The Milk Fund, to which Schmeling is tied by reason of sentiment and written contract, holds the whip hand at present and seems likely to have the chief say where any match involving Schmeling is concerned.

"Fa" Stribling, the southerner's father-manager, conferred with Milk Fund promoters last night, but a pitch developed over conditions of the title bout. It was as a result of this disagreement that the possibility of a switch to Carnera was suggested.

So far as Schmeling and the Milk Fund are concerned, Sharkey is out of the picture. They want either Stribling or Carnera, preferably the former.

Latest developments all indicated that Lewis and his $500,000 offer for Schmeling's services had been "left at the post."

The Garden has obtained Sharkey's verbal promise to meet Stribling, and Bill Carey, Garden president, was to confer with "Pa" Stribling today in an atempt to swing the Macon lad into line. This was regarded as an all but impossible task so long as Stribling believes he has a chance to meet Schmeling.

If he fails to get this "shot" at the German, he might be induced to consider a match with Sharkey, even though title recognition would come only in New York State.

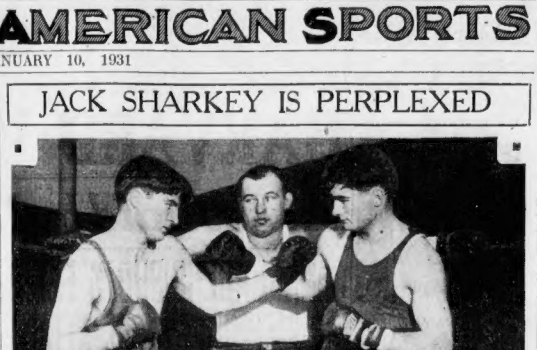
Buenos Aires, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Argentine Polo Association today authorized the sending of a team to the United States for tournament play. The team is to be composed of Lewis L. Lacey, David R. Miles, Juan R. Miles and Daniel Kearney. It will have an aggregate handicap of 22 goals.

The association also empowered Lacey to extend an invitation to North American polo officials to send the best possible team to the Argentine some time in the near future.

JACK SHARKEY IS PERPLEXED



RAY LOPEZ JACK SHARKEY DICK LOPEZ

CAN YOU BLAME HIM. The Squire of Chestnut Hills is trying to decide which is which between the Lopez Twins. Now which is Ray and which is Dick? Guess we'll have to call Pa Lopez in to decide. Ah, the good looking one is Ray. Dick is the other good looking one. Ray was national amateur middleweight champion in 1929 and Dick was runner up. Oh, before we forget, Ray is on the left and Dick on the right—we think.

MARY FISH IS DEFEATED

Mrs. R. Morris defeated Mary Fish today in the only match played in the women's State squash tournament at the Harvard Club, by scores of 15—6, 15—12, 12—15, 15—9.

Play in the third round of the tournament commences on Monday morning and will continue through next week. A consolation tournament for those eliminated in the first round starts Tuesday morning.

Fleet Breaks B. C. Quarter-Mile Mark

Donald Fleet, crack Boston College quartermiler and holder of the New England title, added another record to his list when he smashed the existing mark for the double furlong at the Heights track.

It took Fleet just one-fifth of a second less to cover the 440 yards than it had ever been done before. Fleet's time was 51 3-5 seconds.

The former record was set some years ago by Tom Halpin, B. A. A. star, who three days later broke the world's indoor record for the distance at Buffalo, New York.

Pacific Loop Adopts Universal Draft

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 10 (INS)—The Pacific Coast League baseball moguls today had adopted the universal draft with trivial amendments.

The final decision, however, depends upon what action the American Association and the International League take on the amendments suggested by the Coast League.

Berlin, Jan. 10 (INS)—Max Schmeling, mitt master of the world, snapped back a swift punch to the jaw today when the German boxing commission in an unprecedented communique confronted him with a strong warning to guard against any action which might be regarded as derogatory to German sport.

In reply to the "advice" telegraphed to him at his training quarters at Parkenkirchen, Schmeling declared he refused to be dictated to by any group or body "which has no idea about boxing and has no right to talk about the reputation of the sport in Germany."

The boxing commission's message stated:

"You are urgently requested to avoid in your negotiations with foreign sport commissions everything that might lead to misunderstandings and be injurious to the sport in Germany. You are also requested to instruct your American representative accordingly."

"I refuse to take any orders or unsolicited advice from the German Boxing Commission, which has no idea about boxing and has no right to talk about the reputation of the sport in Germany to a man who popularized it as it affects Germany in the United States.

"This boxing commission, which has never supported me or any other German boxer abroad, which took no pains to send an official representative to the United States to see the first German boxer compete in a world championship; which was not represented at the railway station when I returned from the United States, but which always found me at home when it needed money, is blowing hot and cold."

He said he preferred to have a private "conversation" with the commission in Berlin Monday.

$10,000 Los Angeles Open Starts Today

Los Angeles, Ca., Jan. 10 (INS)—Chasing the rainbow at the end of which lies the pot of $10,000 in gold, America's foremost professionals and a sprinkling of Southern California's finest amateurs will tee off here today in the start of the sixth annual Los Angles open golf tournament.

The fair days were still slow and soggy from heavy rains of the past few days as the first of the field of 138 contestant was to start in threes at 7-minute intervals.

Soccer Cup Match at Pawtucket Today

Fall River and Pawtucket Rangers will start their national cup series today at Pawtucket. It is expected that a record crowd will witness the opening of the competition, the winner of which will have a chance to win the national championship.

The champions are favorites to defeat the Rangers but the latter have a decided edge through playing on their home pitch and may grab the verdict.

Boston College high came from behind at the Boston Arena this morning to tie Latin school, 1—1, in the feature game of the weekly schoolboy wars.

Ed Denney, who is proving a Latin School flash, scored early in the first period, but B. C. High fought back and McDonald caged a goal midway through the second session to tie the game.

English and Jamaica Plain battled to another 1-1 tie, while Charlestown and Trade went without score, making it quite an occasion for deadlocks.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

You will play your golf with the new ball beginning with 1931 for two reasons, one of which, at least, is a good one—because you will have to. Manufacture of the ball we have known and enjoyed for several years already has ceased. The dies with which it was moulded have, I hear, been put in hock by the several makers and on the day they are to rest. Bootlegging of the current ball will not amount to anything, assuming that anybody would want to bootleg it. There are some indications that large supplies of the current ball were bought up this year and put out of circulation to be held for premium prices in 1931, but at best only a limited number of thousands of dozens could have been speculated in this way, and the total available supply wouldn't go far. There are only a few golf ball makers in this country and they have agreed not to make anything but the new size ball henceforth. So play it—and like it!

Indoor Track Season Opens With Y. M. C. A. Meet

MANY STARS LISTED TO COMPETE

By BILL CONNELL

Boston's indoor track season of 1931 opens tonight, when the bark of the starter's gun sends away runners in the initial heat of the 45 yards dash of the Boston Y. M. C. A. meet, held at the Huntington ave. "Y" gymnasium.

Colleges and club athletes of note are entered in every event. Fighting for places should be great in each of the men's and women's handicap and New England A. A. A. U. championship events.

The caliber of the trackmen who race tonight will draw a capacity crowd to the Y gym. The gathering is the first of two meets slated for Boston this winter and is a fit opener for the indoor campaign.

Promptly at 7:30 tonight the meet starts and from that time until the windup event is over, there will be a lot of action.

Vic Nissen of the B. A. A., formerly a Harvard sprinter, is the favorite in the 45-yards sprint handicap. Frank Powers, Falt and Shea of Northeastern are three husky dashmen who can make the judging difficult in the short race. All of these men are capable sprinters, but will be pushed hard by the many fine, though less known dashmen competing.

One very young runner is entered in the dash, Eric Noseworthy if the Beebe junior high school of Malden. Noseworthy is fast, but hardly can hope to place against senior runners. The experience of running in fast company may help the boy a lot, and it is possible that he will surprise by winning a medal.

Monte Wells Races in High Hurdles

Monte Wells, former Dartmouth star, and B. A. A. hurdler, is the favorite in the 45-yard high hurdling race field. Wells won the event last year and may repeat. Frank Packer of Northeastern can come very close in Wells' class, but the high star over the three flights of high sticks.

Frank Cummings will make his first indoor start for the B. A. A. in the 300 yards run. The ex-Harvard relay and quarter-mile runner, now a graduate student at M. I. T., is running well and can fall in front, though on the narrow "Y" track anything can happen and some of the unknowns may grab the gold medal.

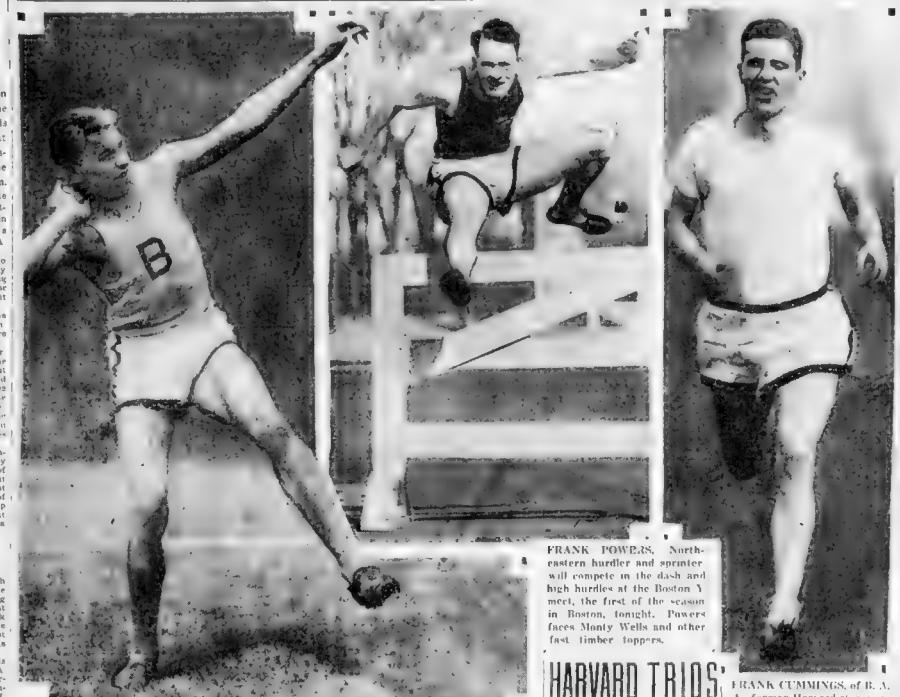
READY TO BLOW OFF LID ON INDOOR TRACK SEASON



ZEUS WILZCEWSKI, of the B. A. A., puts the 16-pound shot tonight in the Boston Y meet at the Huntington ave, Y. M. C. A. gym. The shot is an N. E. A. A. A. U. title event and Zeus hopes to win the crown. A "Zeus" should be king of the track.

FRANK POWERS, Northeastern hurdler and sprinter will compete in the dash and high hurdles at the Boston Y meet, the first of the season in Boston, tonight. Powers faces Monty Wells and other fast timber toppers.

FRANK CUMMINGS, of B. A. A., former Harvard star, runs in the 300 yards handicap at the Boston Y meet. He is a fast, strong runner and a heavy favorite to finish in front tonight.

Race Horse Saved From Death, Rewards His Owner

Then old Ben returned to the races. He won at New Orleans Thursday, and rewarded those who still had confidence in him with $1140 for each $2 wagered.

Ebbets Whips Tracey in Bout at Holyoke

Connolly Signs Red Sox Contract

Eddie Connolly, brilliant young Red Sox backstop, has signed his 1931 contract and is keenly looking forward to developing into a good hitter. If he ever becomes one, he will be one of the game's greatest receivers.

Sande Accepts Movie Contract

New York, Jan. 10—Earl Sande, premier jockey, is going to enter the movies.

Warner Brothers have announced signing Sande to make a film at their Long Island studio in which the jockey will sing and ride horses. His supporting cast is still to be selected.

A race horse named Setback won its first race at odds of 60 to 1 and was set back for committing a foul. . . . Ed. Barrow of the Yanks is regarded as the sharpest trader in the American League. . . . And Bob Quinn, Connie Mack and Clark Griffith are rated as the fairest dealers.

A wave of reform has hit Pacific Coast boxing circles since Bob Edgren, noted sports writer and rattlesnull, was named a member of the California boxing commission. . . . The promoters were fooling the sohns plenty before Edgren showed up. . . . But they realize that they can't put anything over on Bob and are cleaning house. . . . With Frank O'Rourke on the Browns and Mike Gonzalez on the Cardinals, St. Louis will have two of the three oldest big league players in point of service next season. Both broke into the big show in 1912 with the Boston Nationals along with Rabbit Maranville.

Chester Goodwin, former Chelsea featherweight star, has been a bricklayer ever since quitting the ring. . . . Chuck Darling, former B. C. football star, is now selling furniture. . . . CARROLL COACH AT BEVERLY

J. Edward "Badger" Carroll, coach of St. James' high school, Beverly, for the past 13 years, will retire this spring to take over the duties of athletic director at Beverly high school, succeeding Stephen J. Patten, who has been director of the North Shore [illegible] for the past three years.

Carroll has established an enviable record at St. James' and is regarded as one of the best coaching mentors in these parts. With only 400 students to pick from, he has put out good teams that lost only four games in the last 9 years played.

It was reported at Haverhill that Nordin Nast, at present a coach at St. James' high, would succeed Carroll as head coach.

HANDBOOKS ON BEAUTY—facial beauty—say nine times of ten, "Eyes are very important, my dear!" Big eyes for choice, be they baby or siren. But if they can't be big, they must be bright and smooth-lidded and well lashed. If they cannot be gargantuan, they must be gingery. If they cannot be pansy-eyes for size and, color, then they must be clear eyes. If a man may not drown himself in them, then he should be able to bask in their sunshine. Look, where have you heard these before: "Soul-deep eyes" . . . "heavenly eyes" . . . "Witching eyes" . . . "star eyes" . . . "tender eyes"" In these rhyming beauty ads—poetry. All singing the importance of beautiful eyes.

But if you could take apart a friend's or a lover's heart and look under the adjective for EYES you would find a word seldom in the handbook of beauty or the beauty-ad poem—"true." "True" eyes. Honest eyes. Eyes signing themselves. "WITH SINCERE REGARDS." It is the look the longest remembered, the look best loved. The other adjectives are lovely, but without value beside "sincere."

TIGER HEART

trating eyes. In build he was athletic, trim of waist and broad of shoulders. Under other circumstances and in different surroundings he might have passed for a gentleman, but here in a Tenth ave. joint he seemed stamped with the indefinite print of crime. His speech was hard, incisive; he was young, yet he radiated toughened maturity.

"What's the big idea, Duke? Do you think I'm brainless?"

"No, you've got plenty sense. It was a wise thing for you to tell me all about this, Kitty. You trust me, don't you?"

"Be yourself, Duke!"

"Well, then, let me handle this dame. You're a woman, and your trouble is that you got your personal emotion mixed up with your cold purpose. You must remember that the other party has a side, too."

Sullen antagonism glinted in the girl's eyes—eyes that were strangely like Connie's. The young face might have been pretty had it not been drawn and hardened.

"Yeah—and how do I know that you might get soft on that hetsy-totsy baby yourself? Maybe her class appeals to you. Suppose she puts it over on you —and be a fine egg to reprove me, wouldn't you?"

Awful Break

"I'm not likely to fall for the girl," Duke smiled. "You ought to know me better than that, Kid. As a matter of fact, I think you'd have an awful break, and I want to see you get every desire you can. Nine chances out of ten, if I let you handle this you'll muff everything. Oak?"

Kitty's lips twisted. Then impulsively—

"Oak!"

Duke Garson got up. At his full height he was nearly six feet. Dark and lean, his face expressed a kind of polished determination

"You stick right here. I'll bring you two together after a while."

As he moved toward Connie's table his tread was gracefully light. A waiter, accidentally in his path, hastily slunk out of the way. A fresh blonde girl, sitting at a side table alone, looked at him with longing eyes. In another moment he was standing before Connie

"Miss Calvert?"

Her eyes sought instantly to fathom him, but it was as though her gaze glanced off some highly polished surface. Immediately she knew that he was a new kind of man.

"Yes, I'm Miss Calvert," she said, her instinctive self-possession unruffled.

"May I sit down? I'm the person who expected you"

"About the letter?" she inquired.

"About the letter," he responded smoothly.

"Yes, please sit down—I'm so interested," she said, with a trace of sarcasm.

"You'll be much more interested, I imagine, when you know the whole story," Duke Garson settled himself. "It's all very unusual."

"Is it?"

"It is. Sometimes there's something so unpleasant as facing the truth. And that's what you're up against, Miss Calvert —the very unpleasant truth."

There was a stretching silence between Connie and Duke Garson, while their eyes met over the table. Secretly, Connie was telling herself that she must not be upset, no matter what the man said. There was nothing in her past life that was shameful, she had nothing on earth to fear. She was not going to be bullied or brow-beaten or victimized

Her voice was steady, confident. Even she had a little thrill at the midnight adventure. Once when she had swum beyond safety in the Sound and was fighting her way back to shore she had experienced the same odd exhilaration. Duke Garson's eyes were masks. Behind his lack of expression — she imagined — evil must be lurking, yet she felt no uneasiness whatever.

"Your father died some years ago," Duke Garson stated. "I wonder how much you know about his past life."

So that was the game! They were striking at her — at her mother — then a dead man.

"I know all about my father's past life," she replied, carefully checking any anger so that her mind would stay clear.

"In that case," Duke Garson went on, in a low, careful voice, "you probably know that Mr. Calvert was what might be called wild. He drank, theatre, he gambled, and he had an eye for the ladies. Please don't think I'm making him—I'm merely stating facts that were pretty well known. He was also, generous and impulsive. He inherited his money and all his life he did about as he pleased, Correct?"

Connie did not answer. Too well she knew Duke Garson was speaking the truth. Worse things she could not help knowing. Everyone knew them. Only her mother, blindly worshipful, never saw a fault in the reckless man now dead and gone.

"I see you don't care to contradict me about your father's life?"

"Not yet," Connie said.

"I'll tell you more," Garson continued. "I'll tell you something that I'm sure neither you nor your mother ever suspected. Did you know that your father —before he married your mother—was married to a Tenth ave. girl? Remember, this was more than 20 years ago, and several years before you were born."

Connie Doubts

Connie felt her heart grip.

"I never heard of any such thing, and I don't believe it's true," she said, with hushed bitterness.

"Unfortunately for everybody concerned, Miss Calvert, I'm telling you the truth. The proof is absolute. The marriage records are available. It was a secret marriage, but legal, nevertheless. Please, for the present, take what I'm telling you on faith—the proof will be forthcoming later whenever you desire it."

But Connie, having prepared herself to hear any kind of story, was steeled against shock. Such a tale, of course, might possibly be true, but, for the present, no panic of feeling was going to break through her built-up armor of poise

Go on please.

"The girl he married was named Kitty Cunningham. I don't know why your father married her — possibly because he had a trace of conscience. At any rate, Kate Cunningham died shortly after the marriage, but not before a baby a girl was born.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHITE-HAIRED beauties must be careful not to use hair tonics containing glycerine; glycerine will yellow snowy crests. Hot curling irons are taboo. When eggs are used for a shampoo the whites alone are recommended.

Vanishing creams were designed for the purpose of making powder stick to one like a friend and brother. They must be frictioned over the skin until they do the disappearing act.

Ears are having an outing. Showing the ears gives a girl a nice sleek, well-brushed look. The lobes should be powdered carefully, back as well as front, and there should be a rosy color applied, just enough to tell the world that those ears belong to those cheeks, that there is a cosmetic bond between them.

Cross-Eyes Easily Fixed

Wrong to Delay Treatment

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

EVERY LITTLE child has a right to straight eyes. Children are haunted by fear and unhappy if they have cross-eyes. Every child wants to be like the rest of the kiddies. Many a child is h heartache come from some slight defect in the eyes which is easily overcome.

The natural dread of its parent as to the danger of an operation has permitted many a child to grow up with no effort to correct the defect. Other children are the victims of the idea that the condition will be outgrown.

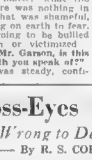
If your child begins to show any crossing of the eyes you should consult a competent physician at once. It may be that wearing the proper glasses will overcome the trouble. In any event find out what should be done.

In order to see things as they really are, the rays of light which enter the eyes must focus properly just as the rays of light entering a camera are focused. On the plate or film, the lens focuses the light, and it is properly focused, the picture is blurred and distorted.

Nature has provided the eye with a wonderful focusing muscle. By its action the rays of light are made to focus on the retina of the eye. The image is made clear and distinct.

But, you ask, how is the crosseyed condition brought about?

Each of us has two eyes, of course. Each eye must work with the other in looking directly at a given object. This action requires perfect team work on the part of the eye muscles. Sometimes, unfortunately, this team work is lacking. Then one eye will wander off to the side, instead of looking straight ahead.



Dr. Copeland

In a large majority of cases this condition can be overcome by wearing the proper glasses. The glasses take the pressure off the focusing muscle and gradually overcome the tendency of the eyes to cross. As the child grows the eyeball grows. There is less and less need for the focusing muscles to act. The vision grows better and at last the glasses may be discarded.

Answers to Health Queries

MISS M. B. Q.—What causes a weak heart? I get weak spells quite often and these last for several days—what would you advise?

2—I am 24 years of age and troubled with neuritis and arthritis—what treatment would be of benefit?

A. May be due to several different causes; there may be some infection at the source. A thorough examination will determine the exact source of the trouble and also determine the necessary treatment.

2—These disturbances can usually be traced to infection in the system—and the underlying infection is probably responsible for the heart condition.

* * *

R. O. Q.—What should a girl of 22, 5 ft. 5½ in. tall weigh? I am naturally small and slender—would this not make a difference in the weight?

2—Do tomatoes affect the kidneys?

A.—You should weigh about 131 pounds—this is about the average for one of your age and height as determined by the examination of a large number of persons. The build is an important factor when determining the proper weight.

2—No, although there may be cases where they are too acid owing to some disturbance of the system, or a bladder condition. Each system is different and should be studied and treated accordingly

The Rhyming Optimist

By ARLINE MICHAELIS

Today a letter came to me,
Sent by a well-loved friend.
And let life's happy tides flow by;
Yet brave the words he penned.

Today I found a lovely flower
Upon a mountain crest;
The air was cold, the soil was poor,
How could so frail a thing endure

A glad child's voice in mirthful shout
Woke cheery echoes all about
And made my whole soul sing

My deepest pleasure for today
Came not from wealth or pride;
But from life's humblest sources flowed
That freely all their joys bestowed.
Though much they were denied.

Prize Recipes Pour In From Housewives

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of Over 37 000

Martha Lee

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR Our Prize Recipe Round Table and Household Hints are coming in so fast that I think we'll have to get most of our space every Saturday to them. I am getting very greedy in wishing that we could have page after page for our own household department, and even then there would not be room for all the wonderful recipes and excellent household hints that are coming to us from New England.

In many cases we are able to fill requested recipes direct to people who have asked for them, but in the selection of recipes printed, please know that it is on account of lack of space and not on account of lack of appreciation.

And don't be backward in coming forward to ask our sister housewives' help with any of the puzzling household problems that crop up now and then in every home.

Yours for service,

Martha Lee

The Round Table

SIX AWARDS of $1 each will be published each Saturday for the best contributions to this department during the week. The household suggestions may include not only recipes, but any sort of helpful hints for housewives economical cookery or housekeeping in any of its forms.

Address all contributions to Martha Lee, Boston Evening American, 3 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

LEMON FLUFF PIE

Fit individual pie pans with rounds of pastry or large pie pan. Leave a rim of pastry over edge to build up fluted edge. Then prick bottom and sides to prevent puffing, and bake 10 or 15 minutes. For filling, use 2 eggs, 1 heaping cup of sugar, grated rind and juice of 1 lemon. Can use part orange juice if preferred, 3 tbsps. boiling water. Beat egg yolks and gradually add half the sugar, mixing well. Then add grated rind and juice of lemon, adding boiling water slowly. Cook in upper part of double boiler until custard stage, stirring. Beat whites of eggs until firm, adding remaining sugar little at a time, then folding meringue mixture into custard and chill. Then pour into the individual shells, or large shell. The mixture is enough for six small shells.—Mrs. Alice H. Lafayette, Bristol, Vt.; Route 1

POTATO FUDGE

Boil 1 medium-sized potato until tender. Mash while hot and add 1 pound confectioner's sugar, butter size of walnut, 1 cup shredded cocoanut or ½ cup ground nut meats, and 1 tsp vanilla. Add just a bit of lemon flavoring. Mix until well blended. Pack in a pan and when firm pour over 2 squares of melted chocolate.—Miss A. L. Jenkins, 2 Columbus sq., Boston.

FRUIT PIE

Line pie plate as for apple pie. Put a layer of raw peaches and on these put a layer of raspberries. Then sweeten with sugar, and cover with top crust. Bake until peaches are done. Use about 1 cup sugar, 1 cup raspberries and 2 cups peaches. There is no standard measurement for this.—Mrs. G. F. Beverly

Worth Knowing

IF CASTERS drop out of chair or table legs, remove the caster, and after filling the hole with melted paraffin, quickly insert the caster in place. There will be no further trouble.—Mrs. M J. Cicatelli, 15 Nevada ave., Somerville.

Place a strip of adhesive tape on the heel and toe of your rubbers, and you will not slip when you walk upon the ice and snow.—Mrs. A. M. Jervis, 24 Myrtle st., Somerville.

WHEN MAKING laundry list I use a small note book with carbon paper and give one list to the laundry man, and the duplicate tells me what I have coming back from laundry. This saves many disputes.

ANSWERS TO REQUESTS.

TO MRS F. S. T., Brighton—The best way to make starch is to mix starch of the desired amount in a bowl and pour it into a boiling water, stirring constantly. If done this way it will be clear and free from lumps and streaks. By adding a pinch of salt, for each quart, it will prevent sticking. If a cloth is pinned over the basin of freshly made starch no skin will form on the top.—Mrs. M. J. C 15 Nevada ave., Somerville.

Recovery Year Not Beliein Name Thus Far

Why Bankers Feel Better; More Americans Are Insuring Income

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Jan. 10—America's biggest bankers are breathing more freely now that runs on banks have ceased, fears of Stock Exchange failure have passed, the down-swing in commodities has apparently been checked, forced liquidation of stocks has blown over and security prices have recovered some 12 per cent from their December low.

Yet wealthiest investors are not buy security with the idea of making a quick profit. They buy either to hold permanently or for a long pull. Considerable quiet accumulating of stocks both investment and speculative issues, has been going on during the last fortnight. Buyers are prepared to wait one year or two years or even longer for generous profits. They have every confidence that ultimately they will be able to reap harvests from 50 per cent to 100 per cent profit. They will not be disturbed should the market drop around for a while longer. They feel that they know that it will not permanently drag at current levels.

B. C. Forbes

Before long there is likely to be rather extensive buying of commodities and raw materials for future—distant—deliveries. Here, too, present prices are regarded as abnormally low and as most unlikely to last.

Gradually uneasiness over nearby possibilities of fresh unsettlement will pass, especially if nothing security disturbing comes to light within the next month or two.

Are Americans becoming more forehanded, more foresighted, more conservative? The Equitable Life reports record-breaking sales of annuities. That is, more people than ever before are safeguarding themselves against dependency by handing over a lump sum for a guaranteed income each year until they die. In older countries annuities are far more popular than they have heretofore been in the less cautious, less thrifty land. Annuities appeal especially to individuals having no dependents. When an annuity dies, the insurance company stops paying and retains the principal.

For those having dependents the establishing of trust funds is becoming strongly into vogue. The main difference between the trust fund and an annuity is that the income from the trust fund can continue after the person annuitized it has passed on; and the principal is not retained by the company but is finally distributed in any way desired.

Both trust funds and annuities will become more common as we gain maturity as a nation and as our readiness to take chances abates.

George W. Hill, shining example of an able son succeeding an able father, announces that the American Tobacco Co., of which he is president, will this year spend more money than ever before on advertising. One company which did not quit Christ's census is the Dollar Steamship Lines. Maybe the reason for its ability to make money can be deduced from a letter received from the veteran, Robert Dollar, just out from one more visit to the Orient. Read these interesting extracts:

"There is no question in my mind that the end of the slump has been reached.

"I am surprised to read in the newspapers here some people think this era of depression was brought on by America. From my observations it is plain that conditions are the same all over the globe.

"Upon my trip to the Far East, I made it all 'Sixth calls on merchants and shippers. Besides a great number called to see me. Then we inaugurated a new steamship service in the Philippine Islands, which meant additional work.

"What William B. Joyce says in your report is my opinion. In my opinion I have; namely, that these slumps come about every four to seven years, and that no human effort can prevent them, no more than any human effort can stop the seasons, which invariably follows them.

"China has suffered terribly. I had a most interesting talk with President Chiang Kaishek and he assured me that the war is an end. Bring on the fighting, put the three million men now under arms to work, and in a few years China will be one of the big nations of the world.

SWIFT LOOKS FOR GOOD YEAR GENERALLY

By FRANK H. MELOON

Chairman Louis F. Swift of Swift & Co. is definitely numbered among those optimistic on the outlook for the coming year. Mr. Swift tells us:

"I think the year 1931 is bound to bring about a general recovery in business, if only to replace the stocks of goods that are being used up. Consumption cannot run ahead of production indefinitely. We are all set for a big turn."

Louis F. Swift

Mr. Swift, who was born at Sagamore, on Cape Cod, returns to the Bay State regularly during the "vacation season." His hobby is flowers, which he grows for his own buttonhole and office bouquet. He belongs to the Society of Mayflower Descendants, further proof of his continued affection for Cape Cod. Gustave Franklin Swift has just succeeded him as president of Boston-United Stockyards Co. Edward F. Swift and Charles H. Swift are vice presidents of the company which is family-managed to a greater extent than almost any other big corporation.

Building and loan associations, Bay State laws governing which are regarded as ideal, have this week been celebrating the centenary of their start. Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of Commerce, is to tell about them in his weekly address tomorrow.

Shoe & Leather Reporter today says editorially:

"The projected railroad mergers should receive the unlimited support of business men. The project is in the interest of efficiency and economy. It should hasten the return of better times. Some railroads through less productive sections than others. They must charge higher freight and passenger rates or go into the hands of receivers. The big, prosperous roads after absorbing the smaller ones can serve the territories involved with more facility and less expense.

"Congress some time ago authorized the establishment of four groups of transportation corporations, but until the intervention of President Hoover it appeared impossible to arrange the conditions of merging. Any opposition to this plan of economic consolidation should probably be only for political effect. Of course there will be governmental regulation under control of the Interstate Commerce Commission."

The Boston Stock Exchange directory for 1931 will be issued shortly by Secretary George A. Rich. It will show rather more than the normal number of changes, as is to be expected of a hectic period in security circles.

Advertising men in America have certainly missed an unusual possibility in not telling us what make of pipe and brand of tobacco are stimulating Albert Einstein in his laboratory work at the California Institute of Technology. "C. T. T." might also show itself a lively rival of the University of Maine by bringing out an "Fin-Stein Song."

Slate st. is trying to puzzle out the object of the new U. S. census on unemployment, to start January 15. It will at least relieve unemployment to the extent of making 4500 enumerators busy.

As Detroit will be included in the census, Director Steuart expects to get valuable information on automotive employment. It seems to many as if the factories might give him that at first hand and with a possibly higher assurance of reliability.

Adequate service on street railways as recommended by Governor Ely in strong terms might relieve considerable unemployment among former workers on Massachusetts tractions.

New Steel Merger Plan Gets Frowns

New York, Jan. 10—Talk of consolidation of Bethlehem Steel Corp., Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Republic Iron & Steel, Jones & Laughlin, Corrigan-McKinney Steel and Otis Steel into $2,000,000,000 rival of U. S. Steel Corp., was greeted coldly in New York financial circles. Jones & Laughlin officials said company was not interested in any merger plans. James A. Campbell of Youngstown withheld comment.

Elgin National on $1.50 Annual Rate

Elgin National Watch Co. declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents, placing the stock on a $1.50 annual basis, payable February 1 to stock of record January 15. Three months ago a 50-cent dividend was paid, prior to which the stock was on a $2.50 annual basis.

CLOSING FIRM IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

Despite the active selling movement which developed late yesterday, the list stiffened soon after the start of today's short session, and while the advances were narrow, the closing tone was firm.

SHORTS RESPREAD

The list was helped by a retreat of the shorts in the chemical issues, and expectation of a favorable U. S. Steel tonnage report at the close, an expectation which was not disappointed. Trading was light.

Allied Chemical regained half of yesterday's 9-point drop, and shares closing a point or two higher included U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, American Tobacco B, American Woolen shares, Mathieson Alkali, Nash, Loews, Eastman, Sears, Penick & Ford, Gold Dust, Continental Can, A. New York Central, Rock Island, Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio. A few of the rails, such as Missouri Pacific, however, and Lehigh, Norfolk & Western, and Lackawanna lost about 3 points.

STEEL'S GAIN

U. S. Steel's gain of 303,690 tons in unfilled orders during December was better than expected, most recent forecasts indicating an upturn of 200,000 to 275,000 tons. The gain, however, a jump of 300.00 to 400,000 had been talked of.

News from the steel industry was generally cheerful, including an estimate of next week's operations in the Youngstown area, indicating an increase of about 5 per cent.

U. S. Steel is expected to step up operations in various areas next week. In the main the expected January resumption of activity seems to be going off as expected.

Numerous merger reports regarding independent steel companies are coming into Wall Street. It is recognized that if Bethlehem abandons its efforts to consolidate with Youngstown Sheet & Tube it may seek other properties, but the renewal of effort of an inclusive combination of Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown and several others, which would mean a billion dollars, were not encountered in financial circles.

The final abandonment of the latest Great Northern-Northern Pacific Railway merger plan was not unexpected in Wall st.

Bankers say that plans which involve the necessity of divestment of holdings in other companies are likely of fruition in times of low stock prices, and what the carriers might regard as really attractive prices are unlikely until general prosperity again as a prosperity basis.

Export copper was reduced to a basis of 10 cents, another 1/4 cent cut. News from the petroleum industry included an expected omission of the Sinclair Oil dividend. Silver rallied smartly in the London market.

COPPER PRICE AGAIN CUT

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Second reduction of a quarter of a cent a pound in as many days was made today in the price of export copper by Exporters, Inc.

This figure placed the foreign price on a parity with 10 cents for the metal in the domestic market, where copper, although nominally quoted at 10¼ cents, has been sold by some custom smelters as low as 10 cents a pound.

Results of Shoe Shows are Awaited

Shoe & Leather Reporter today says:

"Markets generally were reported as slow and awaiting results of various shoe shows. The situation from a price standpoint is said to be steadying, however, and prospects for the future are regarded as somewhat better. Substantial quantities of so-called off-lot leather were taken out of the market just previous to the close of the year, with indications that distress selling is about ended."

Steel's Increase Helpful to Curb

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Profittaking gave the stock irregular trend today, but the large increase in unfilled orders of the Steel Corporation published in the week was closing, brought in enough covering to reduce most of the small declines.

A feature of the quiet trading was the sustained firmness of Ford shares. Stock of the British company rallied nearly 2 points, while Ford of Canada "A" was up 1.

Bond Market Prices Are Irregular

New ork, Jan. 10—Bond prices were irregular today as bidding for investment issues showed signs of slackening. Rails were fairly steady on small fractional changes.

Utility issues were heavy and in most instances were a shade under the previous close.

Rubber Is Dull

New York, Jan. 10—Rubber futures today were dull. January 8.35; futures today were dull, January 8.35; March 8.40; May 8.60. New contracts: January unquoted; March 8.55; May 8.75.

U. S. FIGHT TO LIMIT 'DOPE' IS IN VAIN

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service Cable

Geneva, Jan. 10—The opening meeting of the League of Nations' opium advisory committee, at which John K. Caldwell represents the United States as official observer, found the members haggling over the dope swag like dogs over a bone.

Although the representatives of the manufacturing countries quickly put in demands for a reduction in the cost the League's May narcotic conference might limit world manufacture, no one raised a voice in behalf of the millions of addicts over the world.

The fight over distribution of the spoils blocked the launching of a drive, supported by the United States and other victim nations, to enlarge the scope of the May conference to include limitation of all narcotics rather than the few proposed by the League's opium bloc."

U. S. WANTS LIMIT.

"A conference which does not place a limitation on the manufacture of narcotics and their products would be entirely unsatisfactory to the United States," Caldwell declared.

Not only has it been the object of public opinion in America to place a limit on manufacture of dope, but also on the cultivation of narcotic raw products. This has never been touched by the League.

The Japanese delegate protested that the quota system had favored by the European drug cartel following the recent unsuccessful conference in London, was full of holes. This was denied by the British delegate, Sir Malcolm Delevingne, who introduced a draft convention based on the quota plan.

TURKEY GROWS WRATHY

The Turkish representative vigorously denied his country had become the center of the illicit narcotic traffic, and demanded the manufacturing quota scheme as a condition of Turkey's acceptance of the opium convention of 1925.

Whether America accepts the invitation of the May conference would ordinarily depend on the outcome of the meeting of the opium advisory committee, but it appears now that even if the scope of the conference is not enlarged, the United States will be represented.

THE BOAT RACE SHOWN HERE took place on the Charles River in 1857. The winning boat is the Veland of the Charles River Association. The loser is the Union of Harvard. In the Harvard boat were S. B. Parkman, C. F. Walcott, W. H. Elliott, W. G. Goldsmith, A. E. B. Agassiz and J. J. Storrow, all well known Boston names. Grenville T. W. Braman was one of the judges and Dr. Oliver Wendall Holmes, the "autocrat," is seen rowing the boat in the lower left corner of the picture. MONDAY—Hauling a ferryboat.

FURNITURE TO BE CHEAPER

A large delegation of Boston's leading retail furniture men, home today from their annual purchasing tour in Chicago, bring the news that furniture will be cheaper this spring than it has been for years.

Business is so slow in the mid-West, according to Sidney B. Rogal, vice-president of Morman's Furniture, Inc., that Boston dealers have been able to buy at very low prices, and will be able to sell likewise.

The furniture ordered at this time by the dealers will be in Boston in time for the regular February sales.

"All Quiet" Banned

Vienna, Jan. 10 (U8)—The Ministry of the Interior yesterday prohibited further showing through Austria of "All Quiet on the Western Front."

THE LAST MILE

By Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER 42

KILLER MEARS came to his cell door and thrust out his powerful arms. His gray shirt sleeves were rolled back, revealing his arms, as some animal's paws, and muscle-white from lack of sunlight, hairy bar still, bulging with wiry sinews.

Mears started in a tense, even voice, and in the tone of one whose body and mind and soul are vibrating with hate, to curse Guard Drake. He called him as vile an assortment of names as any man was ever called.

"And I'd gladly walk right down to the chair this minute and take the juice," Killer Mears finished, "if I could get my hands on your dirty neck just long enough to break it!"

If Drake, in the meanest of all the death house guards, thought for a moment that by pulling his automatic and leaping at Mears was going to scare the Killer, he was very much mistaken.

Mears held his arms out and if ever a genuine had man prayed, Killer Mears prayed, mentally, that Drake would come near enough to permit him to grab him.

"Hol-dup!" droned Werner.

Jackson could just see Drake standing with the gun. He laughed.

"Him shoot? He ain't dast. Listen—they'd give him th' hot squat, shuah, an' he ain't man enough to stand it. He'd die down dair—I would skeer him to death!"

Mayor laughed. Mears said nothing.

"Making things harder for you, ain't you, Mears!" Drake finally said.

"If you know anything harder than waiting to be burned to death, let's hear about it," Mears finally said.

Revenge

"Right, Nine," Mears agreed.

Drake swaggered back in his chair and, glad of a diversion, he kept up taunting remarks and derisive, insulting sounds.

"Well, I'll tell you boys. I'm gonna go out there on my feet without no assistance, but I'm scared to die just th' same. I ain't got no right to die, I'm young. I want to see th' world, I want to see my wife."

"Hol-mes!"

Someone came and took Mayor's order.

The guard left to give the easiest of all orders to fill and the most popular of "last meal" orders there.

"Oh boy! Oh lawdy—effen I could wrap my mouf 'round thes or four yards of ham an' a dozen aigs—Oh Boy!"

He became a little sentimental after this and for the first time since he was 10 the death house he passed around a picture of Elsine, the girl he had married after being released from prison.

Even Jackson was allowed to see it.

"Yeah, that's right."

There started that sickening silence. No one seemed to be able to think of anything to say.

"It's a crying shame to burn me!" Mayor suddenly yelled.

"You ain't the guy, didn't you?" Mears asked.

"Sure, he had it comin' to him, try to make my girl, but—but—"

Silence, and then:

"Hol-mes!"

Finally Guard Harris arrived and was let in by Drake.

"There's supper," he said.

Harris went out. Drake locked the door and took his time, then:

"Hey—you let it get cold," Mayor said.

Drake turned slowly to grin evilly at him. For the moment he forgot that he was standing almost against the bars of Killer Mears' cell.

The doors were flush with the walls. By pressing one's head against the bars, one could see pretty well up and down the line.

Killer Mears' hairy right arm was thrust through the bars and hooked about Drake's neck so suddenly that his eyes popped and his throat made a hideous gurgling noise.

The Break

Sunny Jackson said in such an awed voice that everyone strained against the bars to try and see what was happening.

They could see the legs of Drake kicking convulsively at first and then grow limp—they saw the guard's body sag.

Mears, braced inside, held Drake's neck as in a vise and drew his head against the bars until he feared unconsciousness. It was a wonder that Mears didn't break his neck short off.

"Hol-mes!"

It seemed to the death-house men that the thud of Drake's body made a sound to be heard for miles. There came a familiar "click"—the tumblers in a cell lock falling.

Mears spoke suddenly.

"He ain't dead—I'll lock him in my cell. It's a quarter past five, and we've got forty-five minutes to work in before the shift comes with the extra guards, but we gotta hurry fast. Now watch me, boys—I'm the leader—I'm running this—I'm boss. Get me?"

"I'm with you," Jackson said, hoarsely.

"Come out, Sunny."

When he liberated Mayor he thought he was going to break down.

"All right, keep your shirt on. Don't get excited."

When he let D'Amoro out he said: "Wop, perhaps you won't die next month."

"He may right away," Kirby said, slowly.

Killer Mears wheeled to his cell.

"Sure—what of it? Ain't you joinin' us?"

"The Warden's a pretty good skate, Mears. No use draggin' us in to make trouble for him."

"To hell with the Warden. He is such a good skate he lets men like Drake take care of us."

"That's so—well, have you got a plan?"

"Plan? What do you think I've been doing all this time, sittin' countin' cochroaches? Sure, I gotta plan and a good one!"

"What is it?"

"I'll tell you when I'm ready. Better join us or I won't be responsible for you!"

"Well, all right, Mears, as long as there is a chance."

"Your chance begins the minute you step out of that cell. Or would you rather burn? Ask Three about it."

"I can breathe—I feel free—I feel wonderful—ready to fight myself through now," Mayor declared.

"And if we get shot?" Kirby was still the conservative, holding back goose for th' oven. At least you won't hear any clock ticking away th' minutes of your life. You won't have to do that last mile through th' green door while a priest tells you to get ready for God."

FEDERATION

In the First Baptist Church, Commonwealth ave., will be held Monday evening the annual meeting of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches. Officers for the year will be elected and reports read by chairmen of various committees.

UNITY CHURCH

"Does Spiritualism Antagonize Christianity or Does It Tend to Establish Its Chief Claim?" Upon this theme will Dr. Wiggin speak tomorrow evening at 296 Huntington ave. Dr. Wiggin is recognized as the dean of spiritualism in New England.

ATHEISM IN AMERICA

Dr. Carlyle Summerbell of the Roslindale Unitarian Church will preach on the spread of Atheism in America tomorrow morning in the Unitarian Church of Roslindale.

Dr. Summerbell says he agrees with Professor Edgar Sheffield Brightman of Boston University who has recently said "There is probably now more doubt about God among educated people than has ever before been the case."

"Let us not ignore this fact," says Dr. Summerbell, but meet it fairly and frankly. Under conditions of our increased knowledge of, nature and mechanical devices."

NO YONG PARK

A Chinese citizen and student of Oriental affairs will be the second speaker in the Watertown Community Forum. Dr. Margaret Slattery was the first. No Yong Park will speak on "The Revolt in China." A third speaker coming next week is Mr. Jerome Davis of Yale University, who will speak on "The Tragedy of Unemployment." Jan. 25 will see Professor S. L. Gould on "Gandhi and the Nationalist Movement in India." Feb. 1 Dr. A. Warren Stearns on "Are we making progress in the care of the criminal?" The forum meets in Phillips parish house, and is under the auspices of the Phillips Club.

MAX EASTMAN

At Ford Hall tomorrow evening will come the well known lecturer and writer, Max Eastman, who will tell "Why We Laugh Like Human Beings." Mr. Eastman is a graduate of Williams College, and his forebears are pure American stock. He has been editor of "The Masses" and of "The Liberator." He wrote a book, "Journalism Against Art."

B. C. DEBATERS AT COMMON CAUSE FORUM

Six of the star debaters of Boston College will appear at the Common Cause Forum tomorrow evening and contend verbally with each other on the grave subject, "Have the major political parties outlived their usefulness?"

The affirmative will be presented by Joseph G. Rogers, Edward J. Nowlan and John F. Dore. The negative side will be set forth by Peter C. Quinn, Vincent J. Makay and Jerome Doyle. David Goldstein will preside.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

The faith that I have cannot hide from my friends.
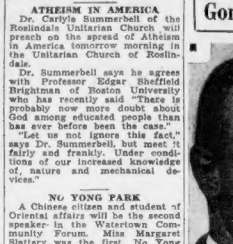
The strength of my acts, the force of my smile
Make a poster so large it is seen in the streets.
It hangs in my home as though masters had wrought
On canvas with brushes dipped deep in my heart,
When I side-step a great duty, or fear to stand up
When standing will mark my love of the right,
'Tis then that I know my faith is a sham,
And grand words that I speak drop like wings without power.

Gone to Dayton



The Rev. Charles Lyons Seasholes, who for seven years was pastor of the Watertown Baptist Church, has accepted a call in Dayton, O. Mr. and Mrs. Seasholes were tendered a reception and sent on their way with the best wishes not only of members of the Baptist Church, but of other Watertown churches. The Watertown parish was his first after leaving divinity school. He has been a director of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches.

Billy Sunday solo "When at Last the Say Goodbye," by Ackley, at the great "Billy Sunday" evening service, at 7:15 p. m. Everything about the service will have a Billy Sunday flavor.

In the morning at 10:30 o'clock the pastor will preach a sermon upon "The Fudamentals of Everyday Life." The Junior Chorus and the Concordia Quartet will aid the morning worship.

Great congregations are attending "Old Dudley Street." Conversions are occurring every week and the Ordinance of Baptism is being administered on alternate Sunday evenings. Preparations for the Lenten season are already under way.

UNION CHURCH

"Can the Dead Speak With the Living?" will be the subject of the sermon-prelude at Union Church, Columbus ave. and W. Newton st., tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock. Rev. Herbert A. Jump will discuss this theme after a special musical program has been given by Warren Livingstone, trumpet soloist, and E. A. McCallum, baritone. Mr. Bennet will give an illustrated drama-lecture on Jane Cowl's success, "Smilin' Through." At the morning service Mr. Jump's topic will be "Religion and Intelligence." At the young people's meeting at 5:15 p. m. Miss Florence Wilson will speak on "Problems of English Boarding School Life." Mrs. Roger Gallison will be the soloist.

PROFESSOR EDWIN BOOTH

Congregational ministers at their regular Monday morning meeting in Pilgrim hall will give a talk on "Suggestions From the Historian of Religious Education." On the following Monday will come Dean Willard L. Sperry on "Humanism." Dr. Sperry is head of the Harvard divinity school

ANNUAL INSTITUTE

At the Center Methodist Church in Malden there is to be held the Ninth Annual Institute, eight Wednesday evenings, Jan. 7 to Feb. 25, 6:30 to 8:00 o'clock. There will be served cafeteria suppers.

TREMONT TEMPLE

The pulpit of Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher will be occupied both morning and evening by his son, Rev. Russell Morse Brougher, pastor of the Baptist Temple, Brooklyn, N. Y. He has achieved a notable success in connection with the Baptist Temple in Brooklyn. His sermon subject for the 10:30 a. m. service will be "The Bible: How to Read It." In the evening at 7:00 p. m., he will discuss "Something New in Sin." His subject will be on the following prelude questions: 1. Like father like son—is it true? 2. Is it possible to live happily when their in-laws are continually causing trouble?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Sacrament" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Jan. 11.

The golden text is: "The bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world" (John 6:33).

Among the citations which comprises the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live" (Romans 8:13).

Fr. Corrigan Begins Lecture Course

This afternoon the first lecture in the forthcoming series under the auspices of the League of Catholic Women at Emmanuel College, the Fenway, will be given before what promises to be a very large audience. The interesting announcement of the course evoked a widespread response from the members of the most enthusiastic interest in the lectures are to be given by the Rev. Jones I. Corrigan, S. J., professor of sociology at Boston College. The first lecture by this widely-known and popular speaker is to be on the subject, "The Machine Age."

The novena services at St. Stephen's Church, "the shrine of the 'Little Flower' in Boston," will have for its preacher on Thursday, January 15th, the Rev. Edward C. Bailey of St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point.

Services are held at: 12:20, special noon-day Mass; 3:30, 5:30, 7:45 p. m. Father Bailey will preach at the 5:30 and 7:45 devotions.

There will be a noon-day Mass at 12:20 each novena Thursday.

The regular monthly meeting of the women members of the Third Order of St. Francis will take place in St. Leonard's Church, Prince st., Boston, on Sunday, Jan. 11, at 7:30 p. m.

The instruction class for novices will be held in the school hall at 6:00 p. m.

The evening classes of the Young Men's Catholic Association opened during the past week for the second term of the 21st annual season.

Enrollment in the special civil service class for the February city and State clerical examination was so large that the directors were obliged to open classes in the same subject, which will meet next week on Wednesday and Friday instead of Tuesday and Thursday.

The speaker on the program for tomorrow (Sunday) in the broadcast of Boston's Catholic Truth program over radio station WNAC (the Shepard Stores) will be the Rev. Louis F. Kelleher, D. D., professor of dogmatic theology and English at St. John's Seminary, Brighton, the subject of whose address will be "The Sacrament of Holy Orders."

The Church Unity octave of prayer will be observed from Jan. 18 to Jan 25 This octave comprises eight days of prayer for the return of non-Catholics to the unity of the One True Fold, and is announced by the Society of the Atonement, Graymoor Garrison, N. Y.

CHURCH EMERGENCY RELIEF

"The four thousand workers at Danville, Va., are still out. Not less than 12,000 men, women and children face winter without work, wages or resources. Without reference to why and wherefores Christian people will help suffering women and children. Our first thing was food, but 25 cents per person does not go far." Emergency Relief Com., 287 Fourth ave., New York City.

METHODIST MINISTERS

Dr. James E. Coons, president of Iowa Wesleyan College will address the Methodist ministers next Monday morning in Wesleyan Hall, 581 Boylston st. The following will be present on Monday with Dr. George C. Cell speaking.

COPELAND LINE AGENTS NAMED

The appointment of The Appliance Engineering Co., 624 Beacon st., Boston, as exclusive distributors of the Copeland line of electrical refrigeration was announced today by William H. Lyon of the Ayers-Lyon Corp. of Boston, Copeland factory representatives.

E. A. Terhune, president and general manager of the Appliance Engineering Co., is widely known throughout the trade due to his long connection with the refrigeration industry.

Tomorrow, Terhune heads a party of Copeland dealers and their salesmen, who leave here in four special cars attached to the Wolverine for Detroit, to attend the annual Copeland convention. According to the announcement this is the largest delegation of Copeland dealers that has ever left Boston to attend the factory convention.
